Tribe ready to issue motor vehicle tags beginning in February

OKMULGEE — The Muscogee Nation will begin issuing its own vehicle license tags Feb. 3 at its new location in the McCullough Building at 110 N. Grand.

Vehicle owners are eligible under tribal law if they are enrolled tribal members with proof of membership and as tribal citizens, reside within the jurisdictional boundaries and garage the vehicle within the boundaries.

To receive a tag, applicants must:

- present a valid tribal enrollment card (verified with the tribal citizenship board);
- the tribal member's name must be on the title;
- surrender a verification of owner's insurance security form or equivalent proof of liability insurance coverage;

• surrender the current Oklahoma certificate of title and registration, Oklahoma tag or certificate of origin; and

• sign the affidavit of jurisdiction on the back of Muscogee Nation vehicle registration form. and

If a vehicle has been inoperable for a period of time, it is required to sign an affidavit of inoperable vehicle and furnish a statement from a reputable automobile repair business, with the cost of repairs, the nature of the repair, and a statement that the vehicle appears to have been inoperable at the time repairs were made.

Those seeking license tags for commercial vehicles will be required to affix the proper federal employer identification number to an affidavit of commercial vehicle or affix to each side of the vehicle, the name of the business, in letters or numerals at least one inch tall and in a color contrasting with the vehicle.

A tribal title, registration, and metal tag will be issued with month and year decals. Vehicles must be registered with the tribal tax commission annually at which time new year decals will be issued.

Personalized license tags will be available after July 1.

To avoid assessment of back taxes on a tribally registered vehicle, the Oklahoma Tax Commission is requiring the subsequent owner to obtain and show proof that the previous owner was a member of the tribe.

This proof may be:

- an original or certified copy of a tribal identification card;

Speaker extends New Year's greetings

On behalf of the National Council, I would like to wish the citizens of the Nation a "Happy New Year". May it be a prosperous one.

The National Council in its endeavor to create a government that is stable and self-sufficient, has worked ardently this past year and will continue to make significant improvements toward that goal in 1997.

The Council again will be faced with many problems this year, both new and recurring. Many solutions may not be popular to a few, but every decision made by the Council will be made for the best interest of the citizens of the Muscogee Nation.

At the top of the Council's priority list for the new year is the tribal budget. The Council is in a budget review process now. Each committee is reviewing the budget for programs under their jurisdiction. When that is completed, it will be brought before the whole Council for its approval.

It may appear at times that the Council has put the Nation in check by not approving the tribal budget when it was first received. The budget is not only a mechanism for the operation of the tribe, but also a method used to insure that all tribal resources are utilized to provide maximum results, whether it is for economic development, education, employment, or direct client services. It is the National Council's obligation to you, as a Muscogee (Creek) citizen, that the tribal budget is thoroughly reviewed then approved by the whole Council.

The continued success of this Nation, and its ability to provide for its people, rests not only with its elected officials, but also with its employees and most importantly, its citizens, all working together for the advancement and survival of the great Muscogee (Creek) Nation.

Again, I wish you a "Happy New Year." Mvto for your patience. I also encourage you to attend the meetings of the National Council or just come by and visit.

Wilbur Gouge, Speaker

Applications will be mailed February through May. Complete applications must be returned June 1 for the undergraduate grant and June 15 for the tribal grant. Continuing students will be sent renewal applications. Send written requests for applications Higher Education, P.O. Box 580, Okmulgee, OK 74447. Polly Miller Homma

by Stephanie Berryhill

At 96 years old, original allottee Polly Miller Homma has a mind sharper than most adults one-third of her age.

An invaluable source of tribal and local history, folklore, and information, she can recall — with great detail — events and memories that occurred in her life well over 80 years ago.

Polly was born northwest of Okmulgee to Seborn and Effa Berryhill Miller on Feb. 18, 1900. She belongs to the Wind Clan and Kvnate Tribal Town. She is a lifelong member of Newtown [Tvlofv Mucvse] United Methodist Church and their oldest living member.

Her family history predates that of the most prominent estehutce families of Okmulgee. It is intertwined in such a way that it cannot be separated from the area's history.

Not only does she remember the details of events that occurred in her early childhood, but she also can recount details of experiences her family had before and during removal as told by her grandmother Peggy Anderson Berryhill, her father, and other elders.

Polly explained some of the difficulty involved in trying to learn the specifics of oral history — it is inevitable that something will be lost or omitted in the second, third, and fourth (etc.) recountings of information.

"When the old people came to see us, once in a while they'd tell you something — in part. That's the way I heard, all the time, what happened.... They'd tell a little bit and a little bit and you never [could] put together all of [it].... When an Indian talk, old people, they don't tell where [events took place]. So we [were] listening to that what they told so we [wouldn't] miss it."

Polly said that her maternal grandfather, Jefferson Berryhill, was Scottish-Irish. As he died before she was born, his half-brother, David Logan (D.L.) Berryhill, raised the Miller children as his grandchildren. She believes they were born of different mothers, as D.L. was half Mvskoke.

Berryhill family members told her that Scottis-Irish Berryhills to coveted the Mvskoke girls because of their beauty. They approached the mekko of one town asking his permission to marry its girls. The chief consented, also permitting them to establish homesteads just outside of the boundaries of the town.

Her father was a first generation citizen of Muscogee Nation, Indian Territory. He was born to Samuel and Paula Whitebird Miller, [a sister to Opothleyahola] both full-blood Mvskokvlke that had made the journey to Indian Territory together while children.

"Papa's father was little boy and that Paula Whitebird was a little girl. They all come together — walked. [They] never had any book or nothing, cause they didn't take nothing out of the house. They locked [their houses]; they kind of knew it was going to happen, but they didn't know when. [It] was spring, so they were making garden and they had wild peaches in that country. So they take it and plant it just about right that year — those peaches — [they knew they were going to be moved] so they get mad and they had an axe and they chopped it down. 'We're not going to let those white people eat it off of this,' they said and some of them did. While they were at it, already, soldier was there catching all the Indians."

Polly said that the family of her paternal grandfather had buried records of their family history, as well as possessions, before leaving Alabama.

"...they hide it underground. They had a meeting there all the time and they made a furniture, new one, and [the underground hiding place was] just like a house, but the trees grewed on it; but there was a way to get in. But they took all their books on the Creek language — their own language, they [wrote it] and they put everything in there.

They took that out so many years ago. Who got it, I don't know...furniture was new-like; they made it themselves...[archaeologists?] were in there, said, there was just nothing spoiled They knew how to fix it [to prevent it from rotting.]"

Homma said her father was living at the time the possessions were found and believes he was notified of its whereabouts, although this information was never imparted to her. Although her father didn't not speak English, Polly recalls he was continually sought by the Oklahoma Historical Society and other historical groups for his knowledge. Renowned tribal leader Samuel Checote, serving as a translator, often took him to Oklahoma City and Tulsa at the request of these groups.

By 1861, Mvskoke people had been in Indian territory around 30 years. Various tribal factions had just begun to adjust to a new form of government when the Civil War erupted. After the Civil War, the Muscogee Nation began to reorganize and ratified its 1867 constitution. It provided for executive, legislative, and judicial branches, thus the need for a tribal capitol was inevitable. The first Council building was constructed in 1868 upon the site at which the Council House Museum currently stands. Jefferson Berryhill was contracted to build two large fireplaces in the original, two-story log structure. His son, Pleasant "Duke" Berryhill, was captain of the tribe's law enforcement — the Lighthouse Company. He played a major role in the last execution under Mvskoke law.

Timmie Jack, a Yuchi-Creek, had killed a friend in a drunken brawl and was sentenced to death by an Indian jury. Jack is said to have "tried out" his coffin and calmly said good-bye to all his friends. Prepared for his May 1, 1896 execution, Jack chose his best friend — Duke Berryhill — as executioner.

Homma recounted the conversation he had with his mother — Peggy Berryhill — on and around the day of execution. A firsthand account of the conversation was told to Homma by her grandmother Berryhill.

"He came home and said, 'I'm gonna kill my best friend. If I could bend [the gun] a little bit that way — even [if] I point it right at him, that bullet wouldn't hit him.' They put a mark where they gonna hit...his heart. He said, 'even [if] he didn't get killed — [if] he lived, why, he could live; that's the law.' So he didn't want to kill him. He fixed it all night, heat that gun — tried to bend it. 'Just a little I could bend it,' he said. 'I know I'll miss it.' And then that day he gonna kill [he said] — 'I don't know how much I bend it or what. I don't know, but I have to do it.' That time come; I guess everybody, a lot of them, watching. He said, 'I hit him right in his heart; I killed him. I didn't want to do it and I tried to miss him. I tried my best all night and yet I hit him right in his heart.'"

The site and a brief recount of the execution is marked by a plaque at the northeast corner of the Council House.

The secret to her astute mind — "I don't know; when people ask me things I answer them right off, I don't know where I keep it (knowledge). Sometimes when I get sick I forget things, but I never do forget the old-timers."

Homma fondly recollects the fish kills Tvlofv Mucvse and Little Cussetah Methodist church members and other Mvskokvlke would hold on the banks of the Deep Fork River. Homma and her family would camp on the south side of the river bank overnight. In the morning the men would make "fish medicine and beat it up in the water. As long as that medicine floating in the water, the fish get drunk." D.L. Berryhill, served as the leader and determined when the fish were drunk enough to be caught.

One of the last and most memorable fish kills of that era occurred when she was a young girl. As the children watched the men spearing and gathering the fish, a great thrust of water was seen coming in the river. The women shouted to all in the water "hurry up ya'll! Get out of the water! It's something big!" [It] was just like something big under there making splash." The only person remaining in the water was a heavy-set man who could not move as quickly as the others. He was cornered up against an eastern cliff wall as the furrowed water rushed toward him. "He [couldn't] see it, but he pounded it over its head. It went to the west and come back again and he pounded it again ... that second time it died and it turned over."

"It looked like pvtoksa," Homma said. "They didn't know what it was, but it was the biggest pvtoksa we ever saw. I don't know the English word for it," she said referring to the huge flathead catfish.

Homma said its size was relative to the eastern cliff. "They pulled it up that cliff and its tail was still hanging in the water. It was bigger than a cow and tall too."

Two non-Indian men offered them assistance in hauling the pvtoksa up the cliff wall. She believes word of their catch spread rapidly because it was soon the talk of Okmulgee County. "People in Henryetta and Schuler heard about it. I don't know why we didn't get someone to take our picture, but Indians never care[d] about reporting and taking pictures."

Homma recalls the era when Newtown was called Tvlofv Mucvse. "No one could say Tvlofv Mucvse, so they turn around and say English."

She remembers the day the church received electricity and the hub bub it stirred among the church women around 1910. Church member Stella Hanes had married non-Indian Tennessee native Porter Cox, whose physical appearance and dress was of great curiosity to the children. He was an electrician by trade and offered to provide electrical service to Tvlofv Mucvse. Most women were in favor of it, as the children often burned themselves by coming in contact with the wood burning stoves. But one elder church mother, reluctant to give up her wood stove, protested and said she would not stand for it. When the day came for the church vote upon the electricity issue, she was the first to jump up in support of it, Homma said. The woman's daughter exclaimed, "'But mama, I thought you didn't want it,'" and she replied, "'Well, I changed my mind.'"

Homma was born paralyzed on the right side of her body. When she was a little girl, she would sit on her grandmother Berryhill's camphouse porch, longing to climb trees and play with the other children. They did not want her around; being partially crippled, she could not walk very well and often had to be picked up when she fell down.

Ironically, she has outlived most of her peers despite never having been physically healthy. She reasons that being being confined to her home, she didn't physically exert and abuse herself much as her able-bodied peers did.

"One thing, all the life I live, look like I wasn't away. I couldn't go away from my mother cause she was always there to pick me up when I fall."

Women visiting her mother's camphouse would say to her, "'Why don't you go play with those other kids? Children aren't supposed to hang around their mama.' But I was quiet and didn't say anything, neither did mama. She didn't take up for me."

Because the other children rejected her attempts to play with them, Homma occupied her childhood years listening to the adults' conversations. She contends her ability to listen is why she is so knowledgeable. "That's how come I know so much about people and the church."

When she was young, Tvlofv Mucvse church members would camp and hold services from Wednesday through Monday morning. Services were held on Wednesdays and Thursdays, she said. The members fasted on Fridays; on Saturdays, they went into town to purchase food goods. "They had all Indian food — tvklik tokse, sofke, spare ribs, all kinds of hominy, grape dumplings. They had all kinds of food; they never lacked for nothing. We were well fed children."

Mondays were reserved for discussing church business and holding "forgiving" services in which children were not allowed to attend. She recounted the story of two adversaries who had made a commitment to forgive each other during one Monday morning service. The two women were brought to the front of the church by the pastor. Instead of offering a pardon, one of the women had hidden a stick under her apron, pulled it out and hit the other woman over the head.

"Boy they had a battle. The church was just small, box size. The church was falling down and everybody cornering up. The old ones couldn't [physically] hold everyone up. They had a great battle in that church and there was no more forgiving; it was worse than ever."

Homma believes the church has changed drastically — for better and worse — since she was a child. She contends the length of campmeetings and services are getting shorter and shorter. Just after the turn of the century, up to a dozen camphouses resided on the church ground — full of activity. The construction of the church's fellowship hall marked the end of its family-occupied camphouse tradition. Homma misses those days, but thinks some changes are for the good. When the fellowship hall was constructed, the expense involved in upkeep and feeding at individual camps was no longer economically feasible, she said.

As Homma is bedfast, her fragile condition rarely allows her to leave her home or attend church. She still derives strength from God and her Christian faith. "When the Lord wants you to know something he tells you — in a dream or a whisper — he gives you that feeling. I'm always laying here with [that] wonderful feeling."

Although Homma lives alone, her small home is always buzzing with friends, relatives, and home health nurses who constantly come to visit and check on her.

"I always said I never will go to the nursing home and I have kept that vow. I'm never sorry for myself or lonesome. I love to visit; people just come and go. I know many people and I'm always glad to see them come and when that person leaves, someone else comes. I'm just happy. I'm glad that God let me live this long."

Siblings distinguished as achievers

SHAWNEE — North Rock Creek School students Billy, Laura, and Linda McClellan have all received commendation from superintendent Jim Langston.

B. McClellan received the achiever of the month award in his kindergarten class for November. The award establishes that he has demonstrated significant improvement and progress compared to his previous efforts in academics and citizenship.

Laura McClellan earned the citizen of the month award in the first grade for the month of November. She has been a positive role model in her class by being the most courteous, cooperative, and helpful. She has obeyed school rules, put forth extra effort, and has been in regular attendance also.

Linda McClellan earned the achiever of the month award in her first grade class for the month of October. She also has demonstrated significant improvement and progress compared to her previous efforts in academics and citizenship.

All three children were presented certificates and medals during school-wide assemblies. In addition, their photographs were displayed in the main lobby of their school.

They are the children of Benji McClellan, Shawnee.

Mason School holds American Indian day

MASON — Mason Indian Education staff held an American Indian Day for kindergarten through sixth grade students.

The staff hosted speakers of the Chickasaw, Choctaw, Mvskoke, Osage, and Seminole tribes. Among speakers making presentations on their tribal cultures were: Ladonna Brown and Terri Alexander, both Chickasaw; Ramona Wilson Harjo and Mae Wilson, both Choctaw; Louise Burgess and Ralph Henneha Jr., both Mvskoke; Archie Mason, Osage; and Lewis Johnson, Seminole.

In addition to speakers, the staff provided clan bingo games and fry bread for all attending.

A spring culture program is being planned for the Mason School upper grades.

Second Indian all-state games scheduled

ENID — Phillips University and Community Health Promotions are hosting the second Indian All-state Games from June 12 through 14.

The Indian All-state Games combines basketball competition with individual development in areas such as leadership and self-esteem. It will include programs geared for the Native American student in the college admission process also.

The games originated in 1995 in an effort to provide Oklahoma youth of American Indian backgrounds a forum for developing skills they need to be successful in college as well as showcase the talent they have developed.

They were initiated through the nonprofit organization, Community Health Promotion; it is dedicated to "promoting the health and well-being of the American Indian and rural communities through professionally organized and coordinated athletic, recreational, educational, and research activities."

The games will be followed by a series of clinics made by the all-staters for other Native American youth. In addition, these students will receive follow-up support once they enter college.

Participants are student-athletes selected from hundreds of nominees in Oklahoma.

For more information, contact B.J. Smith, director, at: (405) 548-2347 or CHP at: (918) 793-7361.

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. — The American Indian Graduate Center is accepting fellowship application requests for the 1987-98 academic year.

Students must:

- be an enrolled member of a federally-recognized American Indian tribe or Alaska Native group in the U.S. or possess one quarter degree (federally recognized) Indian blood;
- be (or will be) pursuing a masters or doctorate degree as a full time graduate student at an accredited graduate school in the U.S.; and
- apply for campus-based aid through the federal financial aid process at their college financial aid office by June 1.

New applicants will be subject to a onetime non-refundable application fee of $25 that must accompany the application. Applications are due by June 2. For more information, call: (505) 881-4584.

Harvard recruiting Native students

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. — The Harvard Native American Program is seeking Native Americans interested in joining its academically challenging and culturally diverse community.

The program is committed to recruiting and graduating students by providing them with the academic resources and community support necessary to succeed at Harvard and beyond. Approximately 120 native students currently attend Harvard University — 45 at the undergraduate level and 75 at the graduate level.

This year the program has expanded its academic and research components through the creation of a new course titled Native Americans in the 21st Century: Nation Building I and II. Through this hands-on interdisciplinary course, students have an opportunity to work with Indian nations and tribes.

For more information, call the program at: (617) 495-4923; or write, Harvard University Native American Program, HGSE, Read House, Appian Way, Cambridge, MA 02138.

University promotes tribal law center

LAWRENCE, Kan. — The Tribal Law and Government Center at the University of Kansas School of Law was founded in 1995 to prepare a new generation of advocates for careers representing the legal interests of Indian nations and tribes.

The center also provides a forum for research and scholarship regarding tribal legal and governance issues.

To achieve these objectives, the center operates three programs: the tribal lawyer certificate program; the Haskell Indian Nations University-KU Tribal Lawyer Training Program; and the tribal law and governance research program.

For more information, call: (913) 864-4550; or write, University of Kansas School of Law, Tribal Law and Government Center, Green Hall, Lawrence, KS 66045.

Berkeley seeks students for program

BERKELEY, Calif. — The American Indian Graduate Program is seeking American Indian and Alaska Native students to apply for graduate programs.

Those programs include: business administration; chemistry; education; engineering; environmental design; ethnic studies; journalism; law; letters and sciences; natural resources; optometry; public health; public policy; and social welfare.

For more information, call or write: (510) 642-3228 (collect); American Indian Graduate Program, 140 Warren Hall, University of California, Berkeley, CA 94720-7360.

Native American program graduates class

NORMAN — The Native American studies program at The University of Oklahoma graduated its first class.

An event its director, Clara Sue Kidwell, Choctaw-Chippewa, believes to be historical.

"We are extremely proud of not only the graduating class, but also the overall growth and development of the NAS program. It has come a long ways in terms of curriculum, faculty, recruitment, retention, and graduation over the past year. We now offer not only a core curriculum, but also some cross-referenced classes in cooperation with other colleges and departments. Of the most importance is the image we are building throughout the nation, state, local, and tribal communities. We are very excited about the language classes and the tribal focused seminars and workshops for this year. In time I expect the program to be one of the nation's finest, not only in academics, but also instruction and services."

Program faculty include: Barbara Hobson, Comanche, assistant director; and Jerry C. Bread, Kiowa-Cherokee, outreach and recruitment.

Current NAS activities include, but are not limited to: the revitalization of the Sequoyah Club as a means to preserving native culture and educating majors about the contemporary ceremonies of American Indians; researching and organizing a contemporary tribal leader summit; identifying and securing scholarships; developing and implementing internships in Indian related organizations; establishing communication networks with tribes, businesses, organizations, and other institutions of higher learning; and bringing NAS scholars to campus to interact with majors and the university community.

Masons dedicate museum and library in name of tribal citizen

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. — On Sept. 21 New Mexico Scottish Rite Masons formerly dedicated the Geronimo Alexander Museum and Library at Temple Lodge No. 6 in the name of the Broken Arrow tribal citizen.

Alexander, a 32nd degree Mason, has been an active member of this fraternal organization for 43 years.

The decision to name the museum and library after Alexander was made by official lodge vote "because he was so well liked among the members. He had been active in the lodge for a number of years and he was just so well thought of... he's really missed here," said Hugh Formhals, lodge secretary.

Alexander, a resident of Albuquerque from 1940 through 1987, served 10 years as an instructor to potential candidates as they were required to learn the rituals by memory.

"To be a qualified instructor, we had to pass a test which wasn't easy. I enjoyed my work," Alexander said.

Attending the event, as well as a dinner in his honor, were 120 relatives and friends from Minnesota, New Mexico, Oklahoma, and Kansas.

Among those attending were: his son, Micco Alexander, Minneapolis, Minn.; John and Bill Williams, Beverly Williams Wilkins, Jack and Theda Douglas Rushing, Doug and Betty Deere Shannon, all of Albuquerque; Bim, Leda V., Danny, and Steve Bruner, all of Broken Arrow; and Tony and Martha Houle, Shawnee Mission, Kan.

Alexander celebrated his 89th birthday on Sept. 20 with a traditional Indian dinner held in the Shannon home.

Muscogee Nation, tribal town governments seek resolution of land claims

OKMULGEE — The Muscogee (Creek) Nation and the tribal town governments of Kialegee and Alabama-Quassarte are continuing discussion of the towns' requests to have land presently held by the tribe assigned to them.

Specifically, Alabama-Quassarte has requested the Bureau of Indian Affairs to assign it more than 878 acres of land in Tukvptce District (Hughes County) currently held in trust for the Muscogee Nation by the BIA.

The land, known as the Wetumka Project, was acquired in 1941 and 1942 through a series of conveyances with funds appropriated by the Oklahoma Indian Welfare Act. The land was then placed in trust for the tribe.

Kialegee has requested that more than 1,750 acres of trust land in McIntosh District (McIntosh County) be assigned to them.

That acreage is referred to as the Hanna Project and was acquired with funds appropriated from the Oklahoma Indian Welfare Act in the late 1930s also. Alabama-Quassarte, Kialegee, and Muscogee Nation all organized by the authority of the act. As such, all three entities are eligible to receive the assigned land.

This is not the first request for a reassignment of the land. In 1991, the Kialegee request was denied by the U.S. Department of Interior Board of Indian Appeals. Though no land was reassigned, that opinion provided the basis for the BIA to claim the U.S. Secretary of Interior has "complete discretion" to deal with the interests of trust land (19 IBIA 296, April 17, 1991).

The tribe has been negotiating with the towns and the BIA, though it appears unlikely a resolution of the issues is expected soon. At the January National Council meeting, approval was given for Principal Chief Perry Beaver to "explore a negotiated resolution of the Hanna and Wetumka project[s] land and mineral issues [and] to take all appropriate actions to defend and preserve" the tribe's interest in the land.

The Council's response was a call to arms after letters from BIA Muscogee Area Office Director Jim Fields were sent to the tribe and the towns. In that letter, Fields claimed authority to decide the assignment. His claim for that authority comes from an Aug. 8 memorandum from deputy commissioner Hilda Manuel who "charged this office with the task of initiating the land transfer review process with regard

Warning: Oklahoma legislature now in session

OKLAHOMA CITY — The convening of the first session of the 46th Oklahoma Legislature Feb. 3, also marks open season for Indian tribes to renew vigilance in the defense of tribal sovereignty at the state capitol.

Among the legislation assigned to a committee relating to tribal interests are:

- House Bill 1274 — an act relating to state-tribal relations. The bill would allow the governor's representative to negotiate and enter cooperative agreements with the tribe. The bill would allow the governing board of a state political subdivision to enter intergovernmental agreements with tribes also. The bill has been tentatively assigned to the House committee on rules;

- HB 1368 — an act relating to state governments that declares state courts have no jurisdiction "over controversies involving an Indian tribe" unless sovereign immunity is waived. The bill has been assigned to the rules committee also;

- HB 1510 — act relating to revenue and taxation. Specifically, this proposed act relates to the seizure and enforcement of untaxed cigarettes and other tobacco products.

A section of the bill reads: "Any peace officer of the state...is authorized to stop any vehicle upon any road or highway of this state in order to inspect the bill of lading or take such action as may be deemed necessary" to determine if the products are being sold without the necessary tax stamps. (Emphasis added.)

Apparently, the right to protection from unreasonable search and seizure (guaranteed by the Fourth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution) is not a matter of consideration for some members of the state legislature — particularly if Indians are involved. The bill has been assigned to the rules committee;

- HB 1809 — an act relating to motor vehicles. This bill would allow the Oklahoma Tax Commission to charge a $15 annual registration fee for all vehicles registered through a tribe. The fee is for Indians tagged with tribal license plates "for the use of the avenues of public access." Fees would be assessed based on the factory delivery price of an automobile at a rate of 90 percent of that amount also.

Essentially, an Indian wanting to tag an automobile with a tribe will still have to pay a fee to drive on any public access road. The bill has been assigned to

Letters to the editor

Editor:

On behalf of the Sapulpa Indian Community, I wish to express their gratitude to the Muscogee (Creek) citizens, Muscogee (Creek) National Council, and Principal Chief Perry Beaver for their support over the years in helping to make the community center and grounds a reality.

A special thanks to the principal chief and Creek District representatives George Tiger, Phyllis Warrington, and Earl Wheeler for attending a special meeting of the Sapulpa Indian Community. This show of self-sacrifice is an example of real commitment.

the revenue and taxation committee.

In the Senate, bill no. 10 is similar to HB 1274 with at least one significant difference. A section of SB 10 would allow cross-deputization agreements between tribes and political subdivisions of the state to be valid without the approval of the Governor nor the Joint Committee on State-Tribal Relations.

In his letter, Fields wrote he will exercise that authority and consider the transfer review process with the following: existence of statutory authority; need for additional land; intended purpose of the land; amount of trust or restricted land already owned; in the land is in unrestricted fee status; jurisdictional problems and potential conflicts; BIA ability to assume additional responsibilities; and compliance with federal environmental laws.

From the tribe's perspective, Fields wrote he will consider: the current use of the property and how its future use is planned; how future plans for the land use will benefit tribal members; the [affect] on the Nation if the property is assigned; and whether any use rights or improvements would be jeopardized by assignment.

Though the issue is far from resolved, a memorandum to the deputy commissioner of Indian affairs to the BIA Central Office in Washington D.C. from Julie Kelley at the Muskogee area office reads "[Fields] emphasized that he was prepared to make a decision on the requests should the tribes fail to resolve the issue among themselves."

The Muscogee (Creek) Nation was awarded and $84,000 grant from the U.S. Department of Justice's STOP Violence Against Indian Women Program. Funded through the Violence Against Women Act of 1994, grantees must spend at least 25 percent of their funds in the areas of law enforcement, prosecution, and victim services. Last December, the Muscogee (Creek) Nation attended the first of two regional meetings for grantees held in Tulsa and developed an implementation plan on how the Muscogee Nation will address the problems of domestic violence and sexual assault. Priorities discussed at the regional meeting included: domestic violence and sexual assault legislation; development of a coordinated community response; increasing abuser accountability; and community education. For more information on this tribal domestic violence-sexual assault project or community education, contact: Debra Gee, project coordinator, Muscogee (Creek) Nation Department of Justice, (918) 756-8700, ext. 301.

Council continues supplemental funding, prepares for legal challenges

OKMULGEE — The Muscogee (Creek) National Council made several appropriations and confirmed former tribal official Hugh Ed Johnson to the tribal health board at its January 25 session.

The 26-member tribal legislature approved more than $157,900 in special and supplemental appropriations for various reasons, though no comprehensive annual budget for tribal operations and programs has been adopted.

Johnson, the former Muscogee Nation Second Chief, is retired from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development. The Norman resident joins Bret Williams and former Principal Chief Claude Cox on the board. Two other members — Susie Deere of Eufaula and Lena Marshall of Okemah — have been asked to relinquish either their positions as board members or their employment. Deere works with the tribal housing authority and Marshall is employed with the tribe's children and family services administration.

Board members receive $500 a month plus telephone reimbursement expenses. Board members are also required to receive 40 hours of related training annually.

Johnson's term will run through Dec. 30, 1999.

Johnson was approved with a 21-1-1 vote. Voting for his confirmation were (representatives listed in alphabetical order followed by district): Mike Berryhill, Wagoner-Rogers-Mayes; Larry Bible, Tulsa; Johnson Buck, Tukvptce; Helen Chupco, Muskogee; Irene Cleghorn, Tulsa; A.D. Ellis, Okmulgee; Barbara Gillespie, Wagoner-Rogers-Mayes; Anderson Hale, Okmulgee; Clyde Johnson, Okfuskee; Jesse Kelley, Tulsa; Dave Lewis, Okmulgee; Harley Little, Muskogee; Dwayne Lowe, Tukvptce; Abe McIntosh, Okmulgee; Thomas McIntosh, McIntosh; Tom Pickering, McIntosh; Bruce Smith, Okfuskee; Phyllis Warrington, Creek; Nancy Watson, Okfuskee; Earl Wheeler, Creek; and Thomas Yahola, Tukvptce.

Voting against confirmation was David Nichols, Okmulgee. Abstaining was Ron Cleghorn, Tulsa.

Speaker Wilbur Gouge conducted the meeting and did not vote. Absent were: Steve Bruner, Tulsa; and George Tiger, Creek.

In other business, the Council:

- granted original allottees a permanent exemption from program restrictions and eligibility guidelines for all tribally-funded services (National Council Act 97-01). The Council gave unanimous approval (23-0);

- approved unanimously (23-0) an appropriation of $40,000 to the Eufaula Indian Community for the construction of an addition to the community center and bingo hall facility;

- approved unanimously (23-0) an ordinance clarifying the terms for members of the tribal citizenship board;

- approved (21-2) an appropriation of $35,000 to the school clothing program administered by the children and family services administration. Voting against the supplemental appropriation were: Little, Muskogee; and Chupco, Muskogee;

- approved unanimously (23-0) to establish a permanent grant program for tribal ceremonial grounds and Muscogee churches;

- approved unanimously (23-0) to amend NCA 95-

12 and allow funds generated from bingo revenues ($290,000) to be used as a legal defense fund for anticipated litigation with the Internal Revenue Service;

- approved unanimously (23-0) to amend NCA 96-67 and allow the tribal health systems board to seek, apply, negotiate, execute, and litigate for all contracts and grants available from Indian Health Service;

- approved unanimously (23-0) to amend NCA 96-63 and allow funds appropriated to Buckeye Baptist Church to be carried over into fiscal year 1997;

- approved (18-5) to appropriate $2,900 to pay penalties assessed by the Internal Revenue Service. The IRS had fined the tribe because the previous administration failed to meet reporting requirements related to the filing of all 1099 forms. Those forms are used to declare personal income paid with no deductions typically applied to income earned through self-employment, contract services, bonuses, or cash awards.

Voting against the measure were: R. Cleghorn, Tulsa; Hale, Okmulgee; T. McIntosh, McIntosh; Nichols, Okmulgee; and Wheeler, Creek;

- approved (22-1) a continuing resolution to allow some tribal programs and services access to another 8.3 percent of their respective fiscal year 1996 funding levels. February is the fifth month of fiscal year 1997. Voting against the bill was Wheeler, Creek;

- approved unanimously (23-0) the confirmation of tribal citizen Eliza Hicks of Dewar, to another term on the tribal citizenship board.

Hicks was first appointed to the constitutionally-mandated citizenship board by former Principal Chief Bill Fife. She joins: Bryant Jesse of Weleetka; Charlotte Anderson of Beggs; Jon Tiger of Eufaula; and Toske Willits of Tulsa on the board;

- approved (23-0) a resolution endorsing tribal citizen Montie Deer to be placed on the federal judiciary for the state of Kansas. Deer, of Wichita, Kan., is an assistant U.S. attorney for the Kansas District. He presided as a special district judge in tribal court for the resolution and settlement of the Nation's tax claim against Danny Bruner also;

- approved unanimously (22-0) a resolution endorsing the tribe's negotiated policy with the state's workers compensation insurance fund. The fund had denied claims by tribal employees using sovereign immunity as a defense against payment of claims. Rep. Yahola, Tukvptce, did not vote.

- approved unanimously (23-0) the expenditure of funds for the construction of the child development center and offices at the tribal capitol complex; and

- approved (21-0-2) a bill authorizing the principal chief to resolve the claims and disputes regarding the water and mineral rights on land known as the Hanna and Wetumka projects. The authorization includes the use of tribal funds for litigation.

Abstaining was I. Cleghorn of Tulsa, and R. Cleghorn of Tulsa.

Citizen to represent professional association
WASHINGTON D.C. — Muscogee citizen Lydia Snyder has been appointed to the Governmental Affairs Committee of the Association for Professionals in Infection Control and Epidemiology, Inc. for 1997.

The professional organization is a multi-disciplinary, voluntary, international organization. The purpose of APIC is to influence, support, and improve the quality of health care through the practice and management of infection control and the application of epidemiology in all health settings.

The governmental affairs committee represents the association concerning legislative and regulatory issues before regulations or standards are adopted, including those regarding blood-borne pathogens, medical waste, HIV/AIDS, and infectious diseases. The annual meeting for the group will be March 20 through 23 in Washington.

Snyder has been employed with the Creek Nation Community Hospital since 1991. She is registered nurse with a bachelor of science degree in nursing from the University of Oklahoma. A native of Haskell, Snyder is of the Bear Clan and Tuskegee Tribal Town. She is the daughter of Donald and Lois Colbert Snyder.

Tribal motor vehicle tags delayed

OKMULGEE — The Muscogee (Creek) Nation Tax Commission has delayed the issuance of motor vehicle registrations until Feb. 17. The reason given is the difficulty obtaining the proper reflective materials for the license tags. The tax commission has relocated its offices to the McCullough Building at 110 N. Grand. Questions may be directed to the tax commission at (918) 758-1474 or 758-1470. Muscogee citizen Mike Factor is the tax commissioner.

Higher education accepting applications

OKMULGEE — Muscogee Nation higher education program is accepting financial assistance application requests for the 1997-98 academic year. Students must:

- possess a Certificate Degree of Indian Blood (CDIB) and tribal enrollment card;
- attend or plan to attend a two or four-year accredited college or university studying toward a degree;
- apply for federal financial aid at their college financial aid office and be eligible for Pell grants; and
- submit a written request for application for the undergraduate and tribal funds grant.

Applications will be mailed February through May. Continuing students will be sent renewal applications. Send requests for applications to: Higher Education, P.O. Box 580, Okmulgee, OK 74447. For more information, contact Chanenna Davis at (918) 756-8700 exts. 614, 615, 616 or 1-800-482-1979.

Tribe to build child development center

The Muscogee Nation Office of Child Care has awarded grants to support before and after school experience projects and child care programs for Indian children living within tribal jurisdiction. Grants have been awarded to Bristow Public Schools, Broken Arrow Public Schools, Tulsa Public Schools, Tulsa Child Care Service, Inc., and United CAP, Inc.

Inquiries about the program should be directed to Newman Frank at (918) 758-1463 or 1 (800) 205-3705.

Festival committee sponsors logo contest

OKMULGEE — The Creek Nation Festival Committee is announcing a theme and art logo contest. The winning theme and logo will be used on the program cover and the festival t-shirt for this year's festival, June 20 through 22.

This year's festival is dedicated to Muscogee youth and the theme and logo should each include this concept. Cash prizes will be awarded to the top four entries as judged by an independent panel.

The following information is provided to ensure all art work will be judged within the same guidelines. Remember, the art work will be used for both t-shirt and program applications and should be practical as well as aesthetic:

- only enrolled Muscogee (Creek) students in grades seven through 12 are eligible for the contest;
- all art work must reflect the theme concept of Muscogee youth;
- work must be 14 inches by 16 inches;
- all art work must be matted. You may use any standard heavy art paper such as poster board, watercolor paper, etc.;
- limit the use of color to six colors for the artwork. Less than six colors are also acceptable; and
- the student's name, age, grade, school, home address, telephone number (if available), Social Security number, and a copy of tribal citizenship must be attached to the back of the submitted work.

The deadline for submissions is March 14. Submit all entries to Alexis Crosley or Jerrie On The Hill, Muscogee Nation Higher Education, P.O. Box 580, Okmulgee, OK 74447.

For more information, contact Crosley or On The Hill at (918) 756-8700, exts. 365, and 615.

Posey play to be presented in Okmulgee

OKMULGEE — "Indian Meadowlark" an original play written by Julie Little Thunder, will be presented at 8 p.m., March 1 at the independent agencies (mound) building auditorium at the tribal capitol complex.

The play dramatizes the life of Alexander Posey, a turn of the century Muscogee poet and journalist, during the allotment and tribal termination era.

Posey is depicted as an advocate of progress who achieves success as a journalist while his fellow tribal members struggle to understand and cope with the disruptive allotment.

The founder and publisher of the Eufaula Indian Journal wrote the widely circulated column "Fus Fixico's Letter" as a vehicle for insight into the traditional Mvskoke psyche. Posey's foil, Chitto Harjo, opposed the acceptance of allotment and assimilation. Harjo knew Mvskoke life was about to be permanently altered by the allotment process.

The play premiered in Tulsa with Bob Hicks, a Muscogee tribal member, directing. The play was a production of The Tulsa Indian Actors Workshop. Admission to the play is free, though seating is limited. A reception will follow.

OSU tribal language offered for credit hours

STILLWATER — The Oklahoma State University College of Arts and Sciences is offering Introduction to Mvskoke (Creek and Seminole) Language and Culture, a two credit hour course, through its arts and sciences extension.

The course is designated arts and sciences 2000: special topics. It begins on Feb. 19 and concludes May 7 and is being offered on Wednesday evenings from 7:15 p.m. to 9:45 p.m. in studio CETS.

In addition, the course will be offered simultaneously by compressed video to Rogers University at Tulsa.

The instructor is Ted Isham of the Mvskoke Language Institute of Oklahoma City. Isham teaches grammatical rules and sentence structure based on adapted teaching guidelines from a linguistic methodology approach. He will teach the course under the supervision of Dr. Pete G. Coser, instructor of record, college of arts and sciences.

For further information or to enroll contact Dr. Kaye White Walker, OSU Arts and Sciences Extension Program Coordinator, at: (405) 744-5647.

Nancy Harjo Beaver

If there were to be a genre for the Mvskokvlke grandmother, Salt Creek church mother Nancy Harjo Beaver would be among the finest members.

Visually a striking Indian lady, her tall stature and slight frame lend her a uniqueness not often seen. She wears her head scarf in the 19th century-fashion of grandmothers, great-grandmothers, and great-great-grandmothers before her. Her style of dress is modest, simple, homespun. Her carriage exudes both humility and pride.

Alone, she has raised five children successfully. She has supported her church and community tirelessly.

She was born March 3, 1903 to Lillie and Rhoda Scott Harjo, both Tukvptce Tribal Town members.

Her mother's life, as well as the event of her death, precedes that of Nancy's memory.

"I think I was four years old, cause you know...them graves — they used to build little house on it and we used to see that our mother passed away at Jan. 4., 1907."

She and her older brother, Alfred, were sent to live with their father's mother, Lindy Chupco Harjo.

Nancy and her cousin, Melissa Deere, both re-

Holdenville — they getting old."

Like most Indian boarding school policies of the day, the speaking of native languages were forbidden at Euchee also.

"They get you if you talked Creek. They make us stand on the sidewalk. I don't know how many times I stand, hot or cold," she laughs.

When asked what she did after finishing school she replied, "I didn't do nothing I guess — just beat corn."

Ten years after the Harjo children had moved in with their grandmother and four uncles, there were two more additions to the home. The passing of Nancy's paternal aunt, Jennie Harjo Long, left two more children without a mother, thus David and Melissa Long [Deere] moved in also.

Once the Harjo family matriarch had converted to Christianity, she did not partake of her tribal town ceremonies. With Tukvptce being only one quarter of a mile south of the Harjo family homeplace, she made sure her grandchildren did not attend the dances either.

"You could hear them singing, and before we went, I just wondered what was going on. They wouldn't even let us go — until she died," Melissa said.

Some of Nancy's uncles still participated at Tukvptce, though it is likely that the influence of her grandmother prevailed.

Even after he had converted to Christianity, Nancy's uncle, Edmund, still served as Tukvptce helisheya (medicine maker).

"He said he told them [he was] quitting. But he said 'you don't have to say it.' He said 'I'll stop for a while. That's what you supposed to say' — he used to say."

"That's telling the ground that you quitting. You're not supposed to, you know, just quit. Tell them slow-like," Melissa agreed.

"He learned his cousin medicine song; he did. My uncle did, but this last one — he didn't do any good. But my uncle, he don't go out and drink all day. When they going to take medicine, they take it like this evening and all night long. But when he learned this other guy, he didn't do good. He was drinking; sometimes he'd be in jail.

Sometime they don't have no medicine man, so sometime they beg him to come and make medicine. So he'd go over there late evening and make medicine, go home, but he didn't do that too long. He stopped all of it just to go to church.

They said Tukvptce was a real strong tribal town, but everything was supposed to be wotko (raccoon) — clan of wotko — medicine man be wotko, and all other things be wotko. But the last time, they didn't do it too good. Just anybody want to be a mekko (chief), so they just fall in, quit. There aint nothing there now."

Lifestyle and routine at the Harjo home, located south of Salt Creek church, was typical of Mvskokvlke of the day. Gardens were made, livestock was raised, the girls pounded corn, and were taught to cook.

Revered for their culinary skills, the women of member their grandma Harjo as being humble in nature and a woman that did not care to be away from the home.

"She was good; she don't talk about nobody," Nancy said.

"She never did go nowhere, even to town or church," Melissa recalls.

Their grandmother's affinity for the homeplace likely affected and influenced Nancy in such a way that leaving home to attend boarding school proved a traumatic experience. Her attendance at Eufaula Boarding School was brief — four days.

"My uncle [James Scott] sent me to Eufaula, but I sure was crying, so my cousin wrote a letter [to him]...so my uncle came after me."

Her attendance at Euchee Mission proved to be a much more positive experience with her brother and half brother enrolling also.

"Lot of Creeks used to go from [the Holdenville area], but they're all gone. There's a lot of them used to go, lot of Euchee boys used to go. They're all gone looks like, but just a few left — one from Salt Creek, Daniel Harjo; Benny Wilson, he lives in Salt Creek have been known to cook some Mvskoke foods that aren't commonly seen on fourth Sunday dinner tables outside of southern Muscogee Nation.

"When roasting ear time, well our grandma she...plant it right by the yard-like, so she went to get roasting ears and she scraped and scraped, and scraped; she used to make a bread and we used to eat it for breakfast. I know I never would get tired of that. It was really good."

Nancy is very knowledgeable about the use of wood for culinary ash. She instructs that red wood or black jack yield the strongest lye, good for preparing vcehutke (hominy corn).

"That's a strong ashes. You have to drip it when you're going to put sofke in there. Drip it; put little holes in a gallon bucket or you could use a bigger [one]. Put some little thin rag in there and put ashes in there and put warm water in there and let it drip."

If the ashes are too strong it will eat the skin off your fingers, Melissa cautions.

Nancy recommends apvske be made with a less stringent wood ash.

She offers instructions for proper preparation of coloring for cvtahakv (blue bread).

"...when you was going to make cvtahakv you had to make pea hull — black eyed peas or purple hull peas. You have to wash the pea hulls good, put them in the sunshine on the table or something outside. And let it get real dry and clean and when they get real dry burn it in a little pot. And then after it burn down, sift it and put it in something, container or something. When you going to make cvtahakv put that in that corn meal; that make it blue."

Nancy said pumpkin was dried similarly. "They used to...clean all inside, cut them up, and they used to put it on the table or something; they used to dry it."

"Tastes better than what you cut up now and cook;

I like it better that way — dry it," Melissa said.

The old-time way of preserving opossum grapes — pvrkoafke (grape dumplings) — was told to Nancy by elders.

"Now they could can and they could freeze them. But long time ago they couldn't do that, so they just put that little stem (bunch of grapes) together and they hang it up, tie it with a rag. They used to hang it up on the wall. When cold spell come, they said they used to take it down, then wash it real good, and they said they boil it. They said they just good as can be."

She began beating corn with a keco and kecvpe (wooden Mvskoke mortar and pestle) when she was small.

"You don't have to [beat] it hard though, cause [it] might spill it up. So you have to do it easy."

"When you start, do it easy until the hull starts coming off; after they all off, kind of beat it harder," Melissa adds.

Nancy said she received many a scolding from her grandmother for spilling corn. "She said 'don't beat it so hard! Beat it kind of easy.'"

She said that two women experienced in beating corn can both beat corn together for faster productivity.

at Antlers somewhere. And my cousin, her and I was looking around and a Choctaw woman was beating corn. She was going to make blue bread for Sunday. It was on Saturday and she was beating. So I got hold that stick and I was beating and there's another one standing up against the camphouse and my cousin went over there and she got it and we beat it like that. There's a white man that used to take pictures around and he came along and took our picture. And Cora (Nancy's daughter) and the other lady's daughter seen us and they got on to us. We said 'well we didn't tell him to take our pictures!'"

Most young to middle age Mvskoke people don't have the stomach for some of the more traditional Mvskoke foods that are rarely prepared today. Nancy said her grandma raised the grandchildren on catvsvcunke (blood pudding).

Melissa explained that right after a hog is killed, its throat is cut. A bucket is placed under the throat to catch the blood. Enough salt is added to prevent it from becoming clabbered. Nancy said the hog's large intestine is used as a casing for a cooked blood, rice, and pepper mixture. After the intestine is stuffed and the last end is tied off, it is cooked in boiling water.

"One time we was talking about that and Barbara Long, she heard it," Nancy said. "We said 'girl we used to eat that catvsvcunke and everything.' She said 'no wonder ya'lls sickly all the time!'"

"Eating dead blood, no wonder ya'lls sickly," Melissa laughingly repeated.

She was baptized in 1905 at Little Wewoka Methodist Church where her mother and uncle, Rev. James Scott, were members.

"On my mother's side all my kinfolks belong to Wewoka church, but looks like they all gone now. My grandma and them belonged to Salt Creek, so I joined at the Salt Creek and my brother did too."

She joined Salt Creek in 1920 and was accepted by Middie Waddie.

Nancy and "Uetumka" goat roper John Beaver had been childhood acquaintances. They became reacquainted at church and married in 1927. They resided east of the church and provided for their children by raising a garden, goats, and small livestock. John died in 1938. After his death she sold part of her Lamar-area allotment to purchase lumber and built a house north of Salt Creek where her children grew up.

She joined the United Methodist Church's Ladies Home Society, now known as the United Methodist Women. Nancy is an active member of the Northeast District Senior Methodists organization also. She remembers the days when this organization, formerly called the Retired Minister's organization, only allowed male members. Nevertheless, she supported them on behalf of her brother, the late Rev. Alfred Harjo and has continued to strongly support the organization since its inclusion of women. Nancy is Salt Creek's eldest member and church mother — a position which she has held for over 20 years.

Editor's note: Nancy Beaver is Aktayacvlke (a water creature described as a snake or tiger); she is daughter of Wotkvlke. Melissa Deere is Wotkvlke.

The name Sawanokvlke "Shawnee people" is said to have been given to Aktayacvlke, Wotkvlke and Culvlke (fox) — not because they shared blood ties, but because they believed the Shawnee to have supernatural power. It is said the clans believed by calling themselves Sawanokvlke they could attract similar powers. At one time Tukvpvtce had a very close relationship with the Shawnee. The name Sawanokvlke was assumed by the entire town during Posketa (Green Corn Ceremony), according to "Social Organization and Social Usages of the Indians of the Creek Confederacy," by John R. Swanton.

Nancy currently lives in Yeager Community.

Her children are: the late John Jr.; Eugene, Yeager; Wanda Postoak, Shawnee; Cora, Holdenville; and Norean Tiger, Holdenville. She has 33 grandchildren; numerous great-grandchildren; and six great-great-grandchildren. She does not own any part of her original allotment.

Realty specialist David Proctor was of considerable assistance in contributing professional and cultural resources to this story.

OKMULGEE — The Committee of Osten (veterans' memorial) would like to complete the encoding of Muscogee (Creek) veterans' names. Any veteran who has not submitted a data sheet is asked to submit the following request for information:

- name (female veterans are asked to include maiden name as well as married, if applicable);
- tribal town and clan;
- tour of duty dates;
- branch of service and rating-rank;
- service outside of U.S. (include countries and territories); and
- special medals, awards, and certificates.

Return the information by March 31 to either: Phillip Coon at P.O. Box 2292, Sapulpa, OK 74406; or Jorene Coker at P.O. Box 157, Preston, OK 74456.

Junior miss competition, powwow scheduled

OKLAHOMA CITY — The 1997 Junior Miss Indian Oklahoma Competition and Contest Powwow will begin at 1 p.m., March 1.

The Oklahoma Federation of Indian Women-sponsored event will be held at Kitchens of America Building at the Oklahoma City Fairgrounds. The contest is open to girls ages 13 through 17 that are at least one-quarter degree Indian.

Gourd dancing will begin at 1 p.m. The grand entry will start at 7 p.m. The crowning of JMIO will be at 9 p.m.

Honored guests will be 1996 Miss Indian Oklahoma Julie Deerinwater, Cherokee-Muscogee. The 1996 Junior Miss Indian Oklahoma Natalie Jefferson, Choctaw, will be present also. All former holders of both titles are invited to attend. All tribal princesses are invited also.

The event is sponsored by: Tulsa Creek Indian Community; Native American Center of Excellence Consortium; and Osage Hills Sales Company.

For more information contact: Marcy Renee Wakeford, 1997 JMIO Director, (918) 832-7289; Lorene Main, 1997 powwow director, (405) 721-3756; or Marcia Chibitty, arts and crafts coordinator, (405) 799-1328.

Tulsa mayor seeks nominees for award

TULSA — The City of Tulsa Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women is seeking nominees for its annual Pinnacle Awards.

These awards are given in several categories to women in Tulsa that have contributed their talents in the fields of: education; health; family; corporate-business; arts-humanities; community-civic service; and public advocacy. The 1997 Tulsa Spirit Award recognizes one woman who has overcome extraordinary circumstances to reach her goals and benefited the community-at-large also. The deadline for nominations is Feb. 17.

The awards will be given at the 10th Annual Women's History Month Dinner and Pinnacle Awards in March — national Women's History Month also.

For a nomination form or more information, contact cochairs: Susan Mason, 627-2982; or Eulene Yeargain, 446-0529.

Mvskokvlke towns, churches, communities hold meeting regarding repatriation act

OKEMAH — Preliminary Mvskokvlke confederated tribal towns-ceremonial grounds, churches, and community meetings in preparation for the Native American Graves Protection and Repatriation (NAGPRA) Act Review Committee meeting have been scheduled.

The preliminary meetings will begin at 10 a.m., Feb. 22 and 10 a.m., March 15 at the Tribal Towns Center, 118 W. Elm St., to prepare for the NAGPRA meeting that will discuss implementation of the statute in the state of Oklahoma. The intention of the preliminary meetings is to unite tribal town-ceremonial ground, church, and community leaders and members to address NAGPRA issues of critical importance to the restoration of tribal towns' communal property rights — as a majority of these peoples are direct descendents of the tribal towns.

In November 1990 NAGPRA (P.L. 101-601) became law requiring the preparation of collections inventories and the notification of tribal groups regarding federal museum holdings that may be subject to repatriation.

The act recognizes the human rights of American Indian peoples, offers equal protection for the religious rights of American Indian peoples, and will lessen the negative impact of the loss of sacred objects sustained in the past. In effect, the act is a restoration of the property rights of American Indian peoples — in terms of communal objects — and ends a pattern of one-way transfers of objects from American Indians to non-Indian institutions. There will be a systematic review of what sacred objects are, what makes these objects sacred, and how they should be handled.

The NAGPRA Review Committee will deal with the application of the statute in Oklahoma, although it is detrimental for tribal peoples under the Mvskokvlke confederacy to educate this committee that the interests of the confederated Mvskokvlke involve predominantly the southeastern region of the U.S. — as Mvskokvlke peoples have been in Oklahoma [Indian Territory] only since the 1820s and 30s.

It is possible that the property of non-federally recognized groups, such as each individual tribal town-ceremonial ground, could be classified as "culturally unidentifiable." A sacred object or set of ancestral remains may be identified as "Creek" while lacking a more precise identification linking them with one or several tribal towns by name. The "Creek" groups cropping up in the southeastern U.S. region may try to compete for interest of Mvskokvlke peoples, but can be disclaimed by requiring them to state their specific tribal town affiliation — a technicality which they have never had to prove. Also, over 200 years ago there was no Seminole tribe; to protect Mvskokvlke interest, this must be taken into consideration.

The NAGPRA Review Committee meetings will be held from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m., March 25 through 27 at the Oklahoma Center for Continuing Education at The University of Oklahoma in Norman.

Tune in to the KJRH Channel 2 program, "Insight," at 9 a.m., Sunday, March 2 for a discussion of NAGPRA as it pertains to the tribal towns.

The Smithsonian Institution is exempt from the law specifically.

Obituaries

SAMPSON BUTCHER

OKEMAH — Funeral services for Sampson Butcher were held Jan. 6 at Prairie Springs Baptist Church with Rev. Boots Fixico officiating.

Wake services were held Jan. 5 at the church. He died Jan. 2 at Creek Nation Community Hospital. He was born March 1, 1912 to Norfer and Donna Bear Butcher, north of Okemah.

Butcher was Nokosvlke and an active member of Okfuskee Ceremonial Ground. As he had been Okfuskee helishopoya, most of his time was centered around ceremonial ground activities.

Butcher was the paternal great-grandson of Hoktucaafvnoke — a Nuyaka Tribal Town girl whose parents died while the family was enroute from Georgia during forced federal government removal to Indian Territory.

He had resided in the Okemah area all of his life. Butcher was the husband of Mary Jane Yargee. He was a farmer most of his life and member of Prairie Springs Baptist Church.

Preceding him in death were: his parents; his wife; two sons, Sampson Butcher Jr. and Robert Lee Butcher Sr.

Survivors include: one daughter, Leona Sanders of Cromwell; one son, Jay McGirt of Tulsa; 13 grandchildren; nine great-grandchildren; and other relatives and friends.

Interment was in the family cemetery.

HELYN LEGGAT

LOMA LINDA, Calif. — Helyn Gatlin Leggat, a new born Muscogee (Creek) enrollee, died Jan. 18 at Loma Linda Medical Center.

She was born Jan. 20, 1905 in Hanna, Indian Territory. She had lived on the Monterey Peninsula for many years.

She was preceded in death by her husband, Major George Leggat.

Survivors include: her sister, Wilma Kelly of Marina, Calif.; a half-sister, Erla Cox of Tyler, Texas; a half-brother, Cecil Gatlin of Claremore; two daughters, Betty Devlin of Yuma, Ariz. and Billye Girotti of Monterey; four grandchildren, eight great-grandchildren; and four great-great-grandchildren.

At her request, no funeral services were held. The family suggests that memorials and contributions be made to: Murrow Indian Children's Home, 2540 Murrow Road, Muskogee, OK 74403.

Gratitude

We would like to thank everyone for their support and kind expressions of love and sympathy during the illness and death of our loved one.

A special thank you is extended to: Alec Lowe; Malcolm Tiger; Chuck McHenry; Bunny Hill; Tommy Mugg; Broken Arrow United Methodist Church; and Tulsa Creek Indian Community.

We appreciate your kindness and contributions more than words can say.

Chief Beaver encourages unity in labor and spirit in address

Editor's note: The following is an edited version of Muscogee Nation Principal Chief Perry Beaver's State of the Nation address. The tribal constitution at Article 5, section 4, requires the chief to deliver the speech every year. Copies of the speech in its entirety are available on videocassette from the communications department. For more information, contact Gerald Wofford at (918) 756-8700, or 1 (800) 482-1979, ext. 300.

This [is] the second State of the Nation address that I have been privileged to deliver to you. This New Year marks the beginning of the second year of my administration and it has been a busy year — one that has been filled with considerable challenges, but also a year that has been marked with progress and rewards.

This past year has been a period of transition for my administration. It is a year of meeting many challenges as we have prepared to carry forth the goals I have set for this administration. The time I have been in office has been a time of assessing our current strengths and identifying the areas that may possibly need change. We are still in this process but positive changes are already being implemented and we are seeing good results.

As the transition period comes to an end, I look forward to moving ahead to accomplish the goals I have for the Nation.

One of my main priorities is to implement better ways of serving the citizens that this tribal government is responsible for — in the areas of jobs, better health care, and educational opportunities.

At this time I would like to commend the tribal employees for their cooperation during this transition time and say that I am expecting even more of you during this next year in the way of demonstrating a greater degree of cooperation and enthusiasm for your jobs in serving the needs of our citizens; service to our citizens is our mission. It is the reason we are all here. We can never lose sight of that goal.

I am glad to report to you that the state of the Muscogee Nation is strong in spite of the difficult challenge we have had in maintaining operations of our federally-funded programs due to budget cuts of Indian programs in Washington.

This has been an extremely difficult year for all Indian tribes [because of] the 104th Congress — and from all indications, 1997 will also be a year of challenge for Indian tribes as we continue the fight for adequate funding for our Indian programs and as we assert our sovereign rights and move to stop any attempts from Congress to interfere with our rights to self-government and to exercise our right [to have a] government-to-government relationship with the federal government.

We must make ourselves visible and our voices heard in the Nation's capital to let them know that we will not allow their actions to compromise our rights as Indian nations.

Again, as I spoke to you last year, I believe it is the responsibility of the tribal leaders here today to work in cooperation to aggressively maintain our sovereignty against, not only threats from the Congressional floor, but also those potential threats closer to home. The major problems and issues that we may face, should not be those that divide [our government] or as a tribe, rather we must unite in teamwork to resist the threats to our sovereignty from outside forces.

In the last State of the Nation [address] I appealed to everyone to work together. I am pleased to say that for the most part, this challenge has been met. However, we can still improve in many areas.

We can have a better Nation, but it can only be done as we are willing to work together — the branches of government, the employees, and the citizens — it takes all of us.

And we and our children will all benefit from what we do today. It can be done, but only through working hard and working together. Teamwork and unity; that's what will help us advance as a strong tribal nation.

One of the major accomplishments of my administration to date is the reorganization of the executive branch. The executive branch had operated under a reorganized plan enacted in 1988. It was outdated and ineffective and change was needed. I presented my reorganization plan for the executive branch to streamline and bring a greater degree of efficiency to the executive branch. That plan was [approved with the passage] of NCA 96-18, last February.

This has been a great accomplishment and we have continued to see progress in the administration as a result of this plan which has streamlined our branch for greater efficiency.

Also, in the area of streamlining and upgrading our executive branch, we revised and updated the personnel policies and procedures. They were approved by the National Council in September. This was a major accomplishment as [no personnel policy] had ever been approved since the beginning of the [modern] tribal government.

I will remind you of the priorities I set when I campaigned to be your principal chief: services to the people; concern for families and elders; education; economic development; and health care improvement; among other special initiatives. Relating to these priority areas, approximately 117 bills were introduced into the National Council for action, with 94 being enacted. I signed 92 of these into law. There were 17 tribal resolutions enacted by the Council and I signed all of these. The National Council and the executive branch have worked toward a common goal, through legislation, to promote the welfare of our citizens.

In summary of these general areas, I will now present the accomplishments of the major programs and services of the tribal government for the 1996 calendar year:

- social and human services. Healthy family values are a priority for this administration — for I believe the strength of our Nation depends on strong Creek families;

- children and family services. This department has and continues to work hard to provide comprehensive services to children and families. Their work is invaluable on behalf of our families.

Speaking further of families, a long awaited dream was realized for our tribal employees and their families with the opening of our new Muscogee (Creek) Nation Child Development Center in November. This innovative learning center, designed for infants to 12-year-old children, is located at the [tribal capitol] complex. The center has a current enrollment of 15 children and has one supervisor, three teachers, and six teacher's aides. We are truly proud of this accomplishment.

Plans are also underway for a child care center to be built at Holdenville. Negotiations are completed and a bill is being prepared for approval by the National Council to purchase the property at Holdenville for the center.

On the subject of the family — I again emphasize my concern for the elders of the tribe. The foundation of our families are [these] elders and they have left us a wonderful legacy to uphold. In my State of the Nation address last year, I [announced my intent] to dedicate the 1996 Creek Nation Festival and Rodeo to the original allottees.

I am pleased to say that [during the] Festival [we] did recognize our original allottees and tribal elders for their invaluable contribution to the founding of this Nation. A reception was given in their honor as well as an East vs. West old-timers' softball game held. The 22nd Annual Creek Nation Festival and Rodeo was attended by over 8,800 visitors and participants.

A wonderful time of fellowship and fun was enjoyed by everyone who attended. The Festival committee also reported the 1996 Festival was self-supporting through fund raising activities.

In other events, we were the lead host tribe for the 1996 National Congress of American Indians Midyear Conference held in Tulsa. Many issues relating to our sovereignty were discussed among tribal leaders attending from all over the United States as well as international guests.

It was a very informative and successful conference.

Of benefit also to our elders, I signed into law this past year legislation which authorized a feasibility study on a tribal nursing home. I am pleased to say that we have completed the feasibility study and have forwarded it to the National Council for action.

- Our social services department continues to meet the needs of the people. For calendar year 1996, the program has serviced 515 clients at the social services field sites and has provided services to 5,157 clients [through the social services department] at the complex — for a total of 5,672 clients [served]. Also, we are proud of the fact that our social services dept. has made new innovations with the utility industry.

For example [the tribe is] the first tribe to enter negotiations with the Oklahoma Corporation Commission for reduced rates for low income American [Indian] families who reside within the Muscogee (Creek) Nation. Oklahoma Natural Gas and Oklahoma Gas and Electric now provide reduced rates for the households that social services certifies to be low-income.

- Our food distribution program serves an average of 3,000 individuals a month with commodities delivered to eight community distribution sites twice a month and to four sites once a month.

- The environmental services administration (ESA) has provided home rehabilitation services through it's various programs and I am pleased to announce that this past year, through the hard work of staff, we received a $1 million dollar grant from [the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development] for the Indian home [improvement] project.

In a breakdown of services, the Bureau of Indian Affairs Home Improvement program has completed 10 [home rehabilitation projects]; the Indian home program has funded 19 projects. With a second Indian home grant funded through HUD, six [home rehabilitations] have been completed in 1996. This represents a total of 35 houses rehabilitated through these federal grants.

Through the tribal emergency home repair, a total of 389 projects were completed for the calendar year 1996.

- economic development. In my administration goals, we continue to explore new economic development opportunities. The tribe must become self-sufficient if we are ever to fully exercise our sovereignty and meet the needs of our people — particularly in light of federal budget cuts of the last year and [those] which we anticipate this year.

Currently, we are moving ahead with the construction phase of the truck plaza here in Okmulgee and we anticipate an opening date during the first week in March. Our tribal tax commission, under the authority of NCA 95-81, has implemented a tribal motor vehicle registration program and this will be ready to go in February.

- Currently, the health administration, under the direction of the [tribal] health systems board, oversees the Nation's hospital at Okemah, and dental and medical clinics throughout the Nation's boundaries. Other services are offered through the community health representatives program and the elderly nutrition program which provides hot, nutritious meals to the elderly at eight sites throughout the Nation.

- education. This is, of course, an area that is not only a priority in my administration, but is among the top priorities of each citizen.

The higher education scholarship program funded 540 students for the fall 1996 semester. The adult education program awarded 21 general equivalency certificates for the 1996 calendar year. The Eufaula Dormitory has provided residential care for 266 students this past calendar year. The Johnson-O'Malley program has conducted a student count of approximately 11,000 eligible students in 47 public schools.

The Head Start program enrollment for the 1996 calendar year was a total of 207 students throughout the four Head Start centers of the Muscogee (Creek) Nation. Additionally, the Creek Nation Head Start served as interim sponsor for a non-Indian Head Start Program in Muskogee comprised of five Head Start centers with a combined total enrollment of 315 for the Muskogee sites.

The adult vocational training program has provided services to 34 participants. The Job Training partnership act program has provided eligible participants with the following services for the 1996 calendar year:

- 383 tribal grants;
- 94 adult vocational training grants;
- 321 participants were serviced through JTPA; and

- 211 participants were provided jobs through the summer youth employment program.

- Moving on, efforts on behalf of cultural preservation have been ongoing through our office of culture and historic preservation which among other activities, has provided language and culture classes to Creek people. Language and culture classes are also provided at many of the community centers of the Nation.

- Our veteran's war memorial project is also moving ahead with much interest generated for this project. The architect's plans have been finalized and funding is currently being secured for construction. This memorial will be a tribute and a way of honoring our Creek soldiers who gave their all for us in the defense of our Country.

- Again, in the area of services to the people, there were 12 editions of The Muscogee Nation News sent to tribal households this past calendar year, with 8,000 issues sent out monthly by the communications department.

- Other services to the people include the Lighthouse administration, which provides tribal law enforcement to protect life and property and maintain law and order within our boundaries.

- This year also marked the signing of an agreement with the U.S. Forest Service to establish a tribal fire fighting team. We are very proud of this agreement with this outside agency.

- Other tribally-operated programs, many of which are support programs such as personnel, or other commissions and boards (such as the election board) are listed in the quarterly reports if you would like more specific information for their activity this quarter.

- In the area of other tribal initiatives, I am pleased to report that in April, we began a project which is still ongoing to upgrade the computing, accounting, and networking systems of the tribe to better serve our citizens. Once this new [information] system technological advance is available at the complex, we want to bring our communities on-line with the system — again in an effort to upgrade our present system of delivery of services to our citizens.

Since the past year has been [a national] election year, our focus has been on getting our people registered to vote in the state and national elections. Through the different departments, election board, and citizen volunteers, we registered many of our people and other Indians to vote in the elections.

In this crucial time of attack upon our tribal sovereignty from many outside forces the Indian voice must be heard. We need our Indian people to be educated on the issues affecting them at the federal and state levels and then to make their voices heard through their vote.

Also being an election year, the Muscogee (Creek) Nation, through the Intertribal Council of the Five Tribes actively supported candidates at the state and national level who were informed and supportive of Indian issues.

We attended the Chicago Democratic National Convention where several tribal leaders from Oklahoma were scheduled to speak on issues affecting all Indian Nations. This was a unique opportunity for our voice to be heard at the highest levels of government and before the American public. It was truly an historic event.

An overall profile of the tribal government includes a 1997 annual budget comprised of federal funds — including self-governance and HUD — in the amount of $32,575,235 and tribal funds in the amount of $4,685,431.

We have a tribal enrollment at 40,862 citizens, with the citizenship board enrolling new citizens every day.

The tribal government employees a skilled work force of 499 employees with approximately 300 employed at the three tribal bingo facilities and another 323 at the health administration.

We have tribal land holdings of 5,649.5 acres of trust land and 326 acres of unallotted lands, and during this past year, 39.95 acres have been acquired by the tribe [and awaits] trust status.

For our tribal programs, we have 67 facilities totaling 463,589 square feet of office and building space which all totals to an estimated dollar value of $7,821,300.

We have 20 chartered Creek communities which in themselves manage numerous programs and projects such as bingo, smokeshops, and nutrition centers. Groundbreakings took place this last year for the Tulsa Creek Indian Community new site location as well as at Weleetka and Twin Hills. Land for the Sapulpa community center has been secured with construction to start within 60 days.

In surveying our progress over this past year, I have been disappointed that we had to make the decision to temporarily halt the operations of the tribal manufacturing company [because of a] lack of feasibility of continuing the operation because it was requiring more of an investment than could be supported [with its] projected revenues. However, we are pursuing more profitable projects for the manufacturing company.

Also, the farm authority board was dissolved this past year, again due to no adequate return on our investments. We are exploring alternatives in this area.

My greatest disappointment has been in the failure of the motor fuels legislation to pass the National Council.

Again, leaders, let me emphasize that we must concentrate on the task at hand — maintaining a powerful and productive Creek Nation for the benefit of its people. I am committed to this goal and I know that our leaders are [committed] as well. The interests of our people must come first.

I am reminding elected leaders that we are accountable to the people who have demonstrated their confidence in us through their vote.

I want to again emphasize that we must work in harmony to achieve our goals. We will never accomplish any of the greater goals of the Nation alone. And, we must succeed. For these reasons, let us strive to stay focused on the spirit of cooperation and what we can accomplish together for an even greater Muscogee (Creek) Nation.

I thank all of you for your support and prayers during this past year, and I thank you for your dedication in seeing the Muscogee (Creek) Nation start 1997 with hope and a vision for change and progress.

We will be met by many difficult challenges but by laying aside our differences, and focusing on the common goal of a strong Creek Nation and making a better future for our children, we can succeed.

We are a strong people. Our history reflects that we have endured many hardships and times of despair, but we have always persevered, but only as everyone stood together in unity. This is the challenge and the hope that I leave with you today.

Tribal hospital surgeon pleads not guilty to rape, sodomy charges

OKEMAH — The Creek Nation Community Hospital's chief surgeon Richard Hudson entered pleas of not guilty to three counts of first degree rape, second degree rape, and oral sodomy at his Feb. 26 arraignment in Okfuskee County District Court.

Hudson, 50, was arrested Feb. 21 by the Oklahoma State Bureau of Investigation whose assistance was requested by the Okemah Police Department. The OSBI was investigating sexual assault complaints against Hudson by a Norman woman.

Hudson will be tried in district court as the tribe does not have jurisdiction. The land is not restricted as the health administration has a lease arrangement with the Okfuskee County Hospital Trust Authority.

The woman alleged Hudson first assaulted her in July. In September, she claims she was raped when she sought treatment at the hospital for a migraine headache. Hudson is alleged to have given her morphine before the incident.

The next alleged rape was said to have occurred Feb. 14 when Hudson administered a pap smear.

The woman reported the incident the next day to Okemah police who turned to the OSBI. The two agencies used surveillance equipment to monitor a conversation the woman had with Hudson to discuss the incidents.

Hudson is reported to have implicated himself during the conversation and was arrested soon after. He was released on $20,000 bond. The bond was reported to have been paid by a hospital employee though the source of the funds has not been revealed.

Hudson has had similar problems in his past. In 1989, he resigned from the U.S. Air Force following accusations that he had sexually assaulted three women and made indecent comments to a fourth woman.

In 1993, Hudson had surrendered his osteopathic license and his Oklahoma license was restricted from 1993 to 1996. The restriction was intended to prohibit Hudson from examining female patients without a nurse or another witness present.

Hudson has been a surgeon and chief of staff at the tribe's hospital for two years. It was reported his restrictions had been removed by the state last summer. He has been placed on administrative leave with pay.

In a prepared statement from health administration lawyer Allen Core, hospital administrator Phillip Barnoski said the staff will cooperate fully throughout Monte Weavel, left, appeared as Snake leader Chitto Harjo and Harold Blalock as author Alexander Posey in the Tulsa Indian Actors Workshop adaptation of Julie Littlethunder's original play, "Indian Meadowlark," presented at the tribal capitol complex in March. The play dramatizes the personal and political conflicts of Muscogee writer and journalist Posey at the time of allotment.

1997 Festival and rodeo committees organized

OKMULGEE — The 23rd edition of the Creek Nation Festival and Rodeo will offer choices old and new for thousands expected to attend the annual tribal holiday June 20 through the 22.

The festival theme is Muscogee youth. The festival is dedicated to former principal chief and present tribal health board member Claude Cox.

Among the new or different events this year are: an eight-kilometer run — a combined event with the Muscogee Nation and the Okmulgee Chamber of Commerce; the Little Miss and Junior Miss Mvskoke (Creek) Nation pageant; and a juried art exhibition and sale.

The Creek Nation Festival and Rodeo begins the third Friday in June and is recognized as a tribal holiday in accordance with National Council Act 76-25.

The Okmulgee Chamber of Commerce begins the Pecan Festival on Thursday of the third weekend in June. At times in years past, the relationship between the local chamber and tribal government has been acrimonious as the community set its festival near the tribal Festival. This year marks the 14th Annual Pecan Festival.

Rather than have competing runs, it was decided to combine efforts and have just one run. The distance has increased from five kilometers in past Festival runs to eight kilometers this year.

The Little and Junior Miss Mvskoke (Creek) Nation will have four age categories — three for the little miss pageant (ages two to 11) and one (ages 12 to 15) for the junior miss pageant. The pageant will be June 16 at the tribal capitol complex.

An opportunity for tribal artists, professional and student, to present their work to the tribal public will begin June 19 with judging and previewing of the professional and student juried art show. The exhibition will continue through June 27.

Organization is different as well this year.

Rather than a Festival committee, this year, the

Clarification

*The maternal grandparents of two-year-old Shayla Marie Fogel, Tulsa Kiwanis Rotary Baby Pageant City Supreme Miss, were identified incorrectly in the February edition of The Muscogee Nation News. Maternal grandparents are Shirley Harjo Mitchell, Okemah, and the late Frank Mitchell. Randi and Jerry Fogel of Tulsa are her paternal grandparents.

*The method of computing the proposed vehicle registration fee to be assessed on owners of vehicles registered with a tribe per Oklahoma House Bill 1809 is 1.25 percent of the factory delivery price the first year of registration. The assessment for the second year is 90 percent of the tax paid the first year.

Tax in Year 1 = .0125 * Factory delivery price

Tax in Year 2 = .9 * Tax in Year 1...

The computation as reported in the February edition of The MNN was incomplete.

Legal notice

Printed in The Muscogee Nation News, volume 26, issue 3, March 1997

In the matter of the adoption of Patricia Lynn Littlehead, a minor Indian child, case no. JFJ 96-24. Notice of hearing, application for order determining child to be eligible for adoption without consent of natural parent, to Gary Lynn Littlehead, whereabouts unknown.

You are hereby notified that Alexandria Delphine Levier, has filed her petition in the District Court for the Sac and Fox Nation, for the adoption of Patricia Lynn Littlehead, together with her application for an order of this court, determining the said child, Patricia Lynn Littlehead, is eligible for adoption without your consent. Said application alleges that your consent to adoption is not required by law for the following reasons, to wit:

1. That you for a period exceeding fourteen (14) years, next preceding, the filing of the Petition, has willfully failed, refused and neglected to contribute to the support of said child according to the parent's financial ability, and at no time during the aforementioned time periods, did you contribute to the support of said child, visit, or sent gifts;

2. That the petitioner is the natural maternal grandmother of Patricia Lynn Littlehead and has had physical custody of the minor since July 1996, and the natural mother has signed a consent to adoption and termination of parental rights.

You are further notified that this court will hear the evidence in support of and in opposition to the granting of said adoption petition on the 11th day of April, 1997 at the hour of 1:30 p.m. at the courtroom of the said tribal court located five (5) miles south of Stroud, Oklahoma.

If you have any cause to show why the above mentioned adoption petition should not be granted by the court or why said child, Patricia Lynn Littlehead is not eligible for adoption without your consent you should appear and present the same at the above stated time and place.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto fix my official signature and seal of said court this 5th day of March, 1997.

(s) Phil Lujan, chief judge

Tribe submits grant proposal

OKMULGEE — Muscogee Nation, Okmulgee, and McIntosh county cooperative extension divisions are collaborating to secure an environmental pilot training program for elementary through eighth grade students of Okmulgee and McIntosh counties. The above partnership is an effort to meet the environmental needs of the elected schools and communities and a response to President Clinton's call for education reform.

Hospital and clinics auxiliary forming

HENRYETTA — The Hettie S. Burgess Memorial Auxiliary is being formed to provide volunteers for service at the tribal hospital and clinics. A reception for those interested will be from 2 to 4 p.m., at the Creek Nation Community Hospital in Okemah. The public is invited and refreshments will be served.

The auxiliary, named for the late Hettie S. Burgess, a nurse, functions to bring together volunteers who desire to create greater community interest and understanding of the hospital and clinic and to provide assistance to the hospital and its patients.

Individuals must be at least 19 years old with the capacity to perform assigned duties and meet immunization requirements. Interested persons are required to make application for the auxiliary. To request an application or for more information, contact Shirley Almerigi at (918) 758-0762, or write, Rt. 3, Box 678, Henryetta, OK 74437.

Festival '97 notes

Festival committee sponsors competitive art show

OKMULGEE — Creek Nation Festival and Rodeo committee will sponsor a competitive art exhibition and sale in conjunction with the Festival. The show, beginning June 19 and continuing through June 27, will include viewing of both professional and student artwork.

The artwork will be judged on June 19. The exhibit will open with a reception and previewing of the work on June 19 also; artists are expected to attend. All professional artwork will be available for purchase.

The exhibit will include two shows: a professional competitive exhibition; and a student competitive art show. Each artist will be limited to three pieces. The top three works will be recognized, as well as an honorable mention.

The three categories for judging will include:

- paintings — all media, watercolor, acrylics, charcoal, etc.,
- sculpture — wood, clay, stone, etc., and
- textiles — basketry, weaving, etc.

All entrants must provide proof of enrollment in the Muscogee (Creek) Nation. The deadline for entry is May 30.

For more information, contact Sandra Peters at: (918) 756-8700, ext. 606, or 1 (800) 482-1979. Inquiries and requests for applications may also be addressed to Peters in care of: Muscogee Nation, P.O. Box 580, Okmulgee, OK 74447.

Festival adds little and junior miss pageants

OKMULGEE — Additions to the list of tribal royalty for 1997-98 will include Little Miss Mvskoke (Creek) Nation and Junior Miss Mvskoke (Creek) Nation.

The little miss pageant will have three divisions for girls ages — two to four years; five to seven years; and eight to 11 years. The junior pageant will be for girls ages 12 to 15 years. The pageants will begin at 7 p.m., June 16 at the Muscogee (Creek) Nation Independent Agencies (mound) Building Auditorium.

Contestants must do the following to be eligible:

- provide proof of enrollment with the Muscogee Nation;
- live within Muscogee Nation boundaries;
- submit a photograph; and
- be between the ages of two and 15 by June 16, 1997.

Judging for the little miss contest will be based on poise and personality as well as traditional dress. Judging for the junior miss contest be based on poise and personality, traditional dress, a biographical essay (limit 100 words); and talent. Deadline for entries is May 23.

For more information, contact Yvonne Bavenue at (918) 756-8700, ext. 229 or by mail at P.O. Box 580, Okmulgee, OK 74447.

Watonga citizen makes unlikely ball shot
WATONGA — Watonga basketball player Bryan Beals made a 65-foot shot Dec. 19 during a game against Fairview freshmen.

With two seconds left in the first quarter, Beals grabbed a loose ball just outside the opponent's free throw line, dribbled once, took two steps, and launched what appeared to be a long fastbreak pass. Instead, the desperation heave resulted in a buzzer-beating three point basket.

It was not enough for victory however, as Fairview won the game.

Citizen to be featured in piano recital in Oklahoma City

OKLAHOMA CITY — Muscogee pianist and opera coach Timothy George Long will be featured in a piano recital at Oklahoma City University at 8 p.m., April 5.

It will be held at Petree Recital Hall, 2501 N. Blackwelder. Admission is free and open to the public.

Long graduated from OCU magna cum laude, and has a master of music degree from the Eastman School of Music, University of Rochester. Long has performed concerti with:

the Eastman Philharmonica; the Eastman School of Symphony Orchestra; the Sociedad Filarmonica de Conciertos Orchestra of Mexico City; the Oklahoma Symphony; and the Beethoven Society Orchestra of Washington, D.C.

He has appeared in solo and chamber music concerts throughout the country including performances at: the Cleveland Museum of Art; Weill Recital Hall at Carnegie Hall; Chicago's Dame Myra Hess Concert Series; and Aspen Music Festival. Recently, he performed in Kyoto, Japan at the International Music Festival.

Following doctoral studies at the Eastman School of Music, Long has pursued his avid interest in the vocal arts by working as an opera coach with the Ohio Light Opera and the Aspen Opera Theater Center. He is currently a member of the faculty at the Juilliard Opera Center and continues to teach at the Aspen Center in Colorado each summer. He was recently named the official pianist for the Connecticut district, New York district, and the eastern regional stages of the New York Metropolitan Opera National Council Auditions.

Actively seeking a means of uniting the two worlds of classical music and traditional Native American Music, he coordinated and conducted "The Circle of Faith; Words of Chief Seattle," in a 1992 composition written by Alton Clingan. It incorporated the narrator as an American Indian elder, a string quartet and a Lakota drumming-singing group. Assisting artists were the Muir String Quartet and bassist James Vandemark. This premiered in Minnesota and was presented in Seattle, Wa. to the descendants of Chief Seattle. It was later presented in Rochester, N.Y. with the Six Nations Confederacy musicians.

Long performed a benefit solo recital at Turtle Mound, a historical Seneca village in upstate New York, dedicated to land preservation. Additionally, he conducted the world premiere of a new work by composer Linder Chlarson and librettist Robert Conley entitled "Mountain Windsong." The musical traces the paths of four individuals along the "Trail of Tears." The cast was predominantly comprised of Cherokee performers from Oklahoma.

Long was born in Holdenville and now resides in New York City. He is a member of Thlopthlocco Tribal Town, and of Mvskoke-Choctaw descent.

Long was a recipient of Muscogee Nation Higher Education scholarships during his undergraduate education. He is the son of Stella and Fred Long of Oklahoma City. His grandfather is the late Rev. George Long who was appointed to the tribal council during the administration of Chief Dode McIntosh.

Ollie Grayson Moody

As the City of Tulsa celebrates the centennial of its incorporation, it's not likely its officials will promote the Tallasi Locapokv people as originating founders of their city actually 60 years earlier.

Nor will they tell you that their city is built upon land allotments of Mvskokvlke peoples who were deliberately indebted to bankers and merchants with the intention of foreclosure in the name of progress.

By the end of the 19th century, the U.S. government had delivered what must have seemed as its final blow. With the extension of the Curtis Act to include the Five Tribes, tribal governments were abolished and their peoples forced to submit to allotment.

Born into this time of disillusionment was Ollie Grayson Moody; she was born June 14th, 1902 big town then, like it is now."

In Tulsey Town Joe Grayson was known well enough to rent a room at the Capitol Hotel and leave his children under the supervision of staff until he finished conducting business a day or two later.

The development of south Tulsa is so extensive that the city draws closer to the family church also. Located on 101st Street, Haikey Chapel is less than a mile east of one of the city's most travelled streets, Memorial Drive.

A Haikey Chapel member since 1904, she remembers Haikey, Bland, and Bemo family members among those attending Haikey after the turn of the century.

Today, urban church members often fellowship with one another regardless of denomination. Ollie said visiting at churches of other faiths

"You wasn't allowed to speak your language...if they catch you talking Creek, they give you a card to wear at noon hour said —

on the allotment of her father.

Joe Buck Grayson had not strayed far from "Tulsey Town." The town's beginnings were initiated by his Tallasi Locapokv grandmothers and grandfathers when they rekindled their ceremonial fire near the banks of the Arkansas River around 1837. His allotment was just over a mile from the river, near what is now Sand Springs — a town nearly a suburb of Tulsa, split through its middle by the river.

Ollie was raised on the allotment of her mother, Menene Frank Grayson. Located only three miles from the Arkansas River, it has now been engulfed into the metropolis of Tulsa.

Ollie remembers a time when bridges crossing the Arkansas into Tulsa were few. The Graysons had to load their wagon and team on a flatboat to get across the river into town. "It wasn't a very was not common, although church peoples were always amicable toward one another.

"...Koweta, that was a Baptist church over there at Coweta...but we didn't go. Methodists didn't mix with the Baptist church."

However her family did mix at the stompgrounds. She believes it was more commonplace for Mvskoke people to attend both church and ceremonial grounds than it is now.

"My dad was a leader, you know. They'd call on him...he'd lead. He'd go everytime they [Kvsetta Ceremonial Ground] have camp. He went to church too, in between time."

Of ribbon dances at Polecat Ceremonial Ground she recalls that the women danced on an area that was "knoll-like" wearing long, cotton dresses of subtle color with many narrow ribbons.

Because her father owned an audio recording device, members of different grounds often filled the Grayson home to record stompdance songs. Ollie said the disks that were similar in appearance to phonograph records, yet much smaller. Ground leaders gathered at their home for these recordings often, although she does not know what became of the records.

Her father was not educated formally, although he used what means available to educate his children during their early years.

"My dad, he bought us school books...like first reader.... It didn't take but a few days for me to get started. I was easy learned."

From this home school-environment her father sent her to Eufaula Boarding School. She credits the school with teaching her to cook, sew, crochet, as well as play the piano.

She spoke little English at the time she entered school in 1917; by the time she left her English was fluent.

"You wasn't allowed to speak your language...if they catch you talking Creek, they give you a card to wear at noon hour said — 'I T A L K C R E E K.' They never did catch me at it. They [students] didn't much like it, but they couldn't say nothing. They couldn't talk back you know."

Ollie was one of few boarding school girls that offered their services to the Red Cross during school holidays. The girls contributed to the war effort by preparing bandages and knitting socks, scarves, and caps.

She was preparing to attend Haskell when one of her younger sisters died. Her mother had passed away in 1910 and, being the oldest of five children, her father called her home.

"I was getting ready to go to Haskell, so he made me quit. He didn't have much education...he didn't know anything about it, [but] I listened to him."

Ollie recalls the days during the first half of this century when butchering hogs was a family, sometimes community effort. All parts of the hog, from head to hoof, were utilized. Her father raised many hogs, butchering and preserving the meat himself. The fat was rendered for cooking grease. Not even entrails were left for waste.

"There's a lot of work to that chitlins. You've done. Put it in a big old pan then work it up; put seasons in it...salt and pepper."

After marrying Chevrolet salesman William Moody, a Cherokee, she moved to Bixby. Shortly after she began working in a local cafe she and a business partner bought the establishment and renamed it "Ollie and Inez." She and Inez sold the cafe eventually. Ollie was the owner of several rental properties also.

She has worked for Bixby Public Schools and the Camelot Hotel also.

Ollie has retained ownership of 40 acres of her allotment. She has never lived on the property, located in Creek County, north of Bristow. When the livelihood of most Indian and non-Indian Oklahomans had been devastated by the depression, her land got to clean it...turn it and everything. When you cook it they say... 'put a big onion in the pot with the chitlins' and that takes all that odor — onions and potatoes I believe it is they said."

Making hog head cheese was a tedious task as well. When asked if the eyes were included in the cheese, she laughed. "You don't put the eyeballs in there — might see too much."

Ollie said the snout was removed, then the hog's head was quartered and separated from the skull preliminary to cooking.

"You just take the hog head and have someone trim it for you good. Take all that black stuff off of there...whiskers I call it, pig skin and everything like that. You put it in a big old pot and add a little water to it and cook it slow...it takes about near all day to get it done. After it gets cold, it's provided income for her.

"One time they struck a little oil, but it was in the water...that was during the time of depression...I was getting a pretty good [payment] off of it, but they stopped all that...so I [was] just set back flat."

Editor's note: Ollie is Hecete ["Hitchite"]. Her maternal grandparents were "Frank" and "Nancy" [per Creek Nation Roll Card No. 2425], both were Hecete. Both of her paternal great-grandparents, Stephen and Lucy Grayson, were Tallasi Locapokv.

Currently occupying the land which was her mother's allotment is Forest Trails Addition, located between Sheridan Avenue and Memorial Drive near 111th Street in Tulsa.

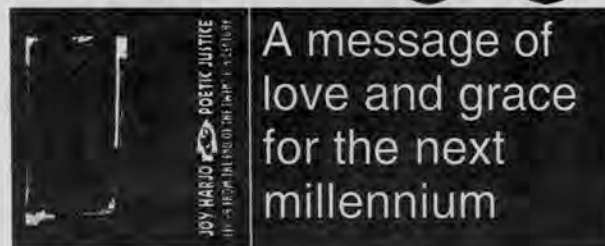

Unit Rig, a manufacturer of off-highway mining trucks, occupies her father's former allotment at 5400 S. 49 W. Avenue near Sand Springs.

Ollie is the mother of two sons, William "Bill" Moody Jr. of Bristow and the late Jimmy Moody. She has one sister living, Mary Marshall of Bristow.

Ollie still attends Haikey Chapel.

She resides at Bixby Manor.

JOY HARJO

Joy Harjo & Poetic Justice
Letter from the End of the Twentieth Century
Red Horses, 1996

As a young teenager attending Tulsa Public Schools, Harjo was attracted to the saxophone. Her inquiries about playing the most soulful of instruments were rebuffed.

"I was told I couldn't play the sax because I was a girl," recalled Harjo.

Eight years ago, Harjo began playing the saxophone. By 1992, she was playing gigs with her band, Poetic Justice. Today, Harjo and Poetic Justice are receiving raves for their melding of jazz and poetry as a means to express their collective vision.

"It's hard to find your way in this world as an artist," Harjo said. "Poetry and music do it for me because I love it. Part of my love comes out as a love for music."

Indeed, Harjo is an accomplished poet and author recognized internationally for her passionate expressions of common human experiences in her work. Though emotions are universal, her perspective as an Indian is never obscured.

Nor is her identity shaded on this disc of her selected poems set to music. In fact, Harjo says this collaborative effort is steeped in Muscogee tradition of rhythmic story telling and song.

Letter has been categorized by the music press as world music — a silly label developed by critics and music industry types to classify music that won't get played on mainstream country and rock stations. That such a label would apply to a group of indigenous musicians is ironic.

Fusion became the word to describe music that are dutifully mentioned in reviews and commentary about Letter.

What this music does have is soul. It is at once a pleasant and provocative listening experience. Descriptions of the music are inadequate. Letter is to be experienced with discussion centered on its affect to the listener.

It has become a cliché for many artists to say their work is a catharsis. To her credit, Harjo has avoided such claims. True, some of her work is extremely personal, with stark and graphic images from her experience, but never overwhelming.

"I want my work to make sense to the people at home," Harjo said.

Fear Poem, from her collection "She Had Some Horses," is one such track. Here, the artist acknowledges the fear of being and intimacy, releases the demon, and is redeemed through the acceptance of personal responsibility for the damning effect of being consumed with fear.

From this listener's perspective, She Had Some Horses (from her collection of the same title) comes closest to being the representative cut on this disc. A reggae beat with rhythm and blues guitar riffs and Harjo's lilting saxophone solos accompany her lyrics about a woman who has known controlling, delusional, and selfish clan, tribal town: daughter of Katoovik and Okeapov Tribal Town born: 1951, Tulsa

parents: Wynema Baker Jewell, Cherokee, of Decatur, Ark. and the late William Foster Jr., Okmulgee paternal grandparents, great-grandparents: the late Naomi Harjo and William Foster, Okmulgee; Henry and Katie Monahwee Harjo. She is a direct descendant of Red Stick War leader and Okfuskee second chief Menawa. She is also related to Alex Posey through her grandmother family influences: Harjo shared close relationships with her great-aunt, the late Lois Harjo, Okmulgee; and relative, the late John Jacobs, Holdenville.

hometown: Tulsa

current residence: Albuquerque, N.M.

saving grace: Harjo's talent first evidenced itself in the form of award-winning artwork at the grade school level. For a child growing up in a chaotic home environment, "that's kind of what saved me."

education: Attended high school at the Institute of American Indian Art, Santa Fe, N.M.; B.A., University of New Mexico; M.F.A. in creative writing, Iowa Writer's Workshop, the University of Iowa; Anthropology Film Center, Santa Fe employment: Harjo was a full professor in creative writing at the University of New Mexico; she resigned recently to pursue her music and literary endeavors full-time. She is a screen writer and editor also.

awards: Harjo has won numerous awards including: the American Book Award, the American Indian Distinguished Achievement in the Arts Award, the Academy of American Poetry Award, U.N.M.; the Delmore Schwartz Award, the Lifetime Achievement Award, U.N.M.; two National Endowment for the Arts awards; and the William Carlos Williams Award.

combined elements of rock with the improvisation and interpretation of jazz in part as a reaction to the music Miles Davis recorded on Bitches Brew.

To that extent, Letter is certainly fusion. Harjo says the music is a blend of "tribal, modern jazz, reggae, whatever."

"The music that speaks for us is a blend of influences that speak of community, love for people, for all creatures, for this crazy beautiful history and the need to sing with and of the sacred," Harjo writes in the introduction to Letter.

Certainly there are elements of reggae, blues, and tribal music in a jazz styling on this disc. All of these men symbolized by horses whose behavior depict these destructive characteristics.

Her gift of phrasing is evident in the recitations and just as apparent with her lyrical saxophone solos. The other members of Poetic Justice are accomplished musicians who play many instruments with stylish subtlety. Think cool. There are no histrionics which is consistent with the group's native sense of community.

This is a group whose collective whole is far greater than its sum, but Harjo is its driving force. Keenly aware of her role as messenger, Harjo, with humility born from perspective, dismisses reviewers hailing her as the native voice. "There is a history of our people speaking at the borders of the culture but I don't think anyone can be the native voice. There is no such thing, particularly among Muscogee."

Perhaps. It is understandable the aversion to sweeping pronouncements that mean nothing but might bring attention to her while distracting from her work. Still, Harjo is delivering messages that should be heard.

We are however, nearing the millennium, desperate for order in this chaotic and seemingly random, universe. Listening to Letter suggests we should find deliverance within.

Note: Letter from the End of the Twentieth Century is available in compact disc only from Red Horses Records, P.O. Box 40726, Albuquerque, NM, 87196. The cost is $18.

Indian health scholarships available

OKLAHOMA CITY — The Indian Health Service and Department of Health and Human Services announces the availability of scholarship funding for the health professions preparatory, pre-graduate, and Indian health professions scholarship programs.

Applications accepted for this competitive award cycle are for the 1997-98 academic year.

In order for an applicant to be considered for preparatory funding during the fiscal year 1997 scholarship cycle, the student must be accepted or enrolled in a college or university beginning fall 1997.

The health professions scholarship program offers financial assistance to Indian students enrolled full or part-time in health professions and allied health profession programs. This scholarship requires a service obligation and payback requirements that the recipient incurs upon acceptance of the scholarship funding. Obituaries

ELLA CHAUDHURI

TEMPE, Ariz. — Funeral services for Ella Jean Hill Chaudhuri were held Feb. 21 at Tempe Mortuary.

She died Feb. 17 at her Tempe home. She was born to Wilburn and Mary Ann Hill on May 29, 1937 at the Okfuskee County allotment of her grandfather, James Scott.

Chaudhuri belonged to the Bear Clan and Oceapofv Tribal Town. She was the daughter of the Bird Clan and Greenleaf Tribal Town.

She was the granddaughter of Micco Elmer Hill of Fish Pond and Rhoda Yahola. Chaudhuri was raised with the traditional teachings of her grandfather Scott, John Brown, Billy Osceola, Netche Gray, and other elders.

Chaudhuri attended: Eufaula Boarding School; Tulsa Central High School; Oklahoma City Public Schools; and several universities.

Her parents were associated with Greenleaf Baptist Church and actively involved in spiritual work in the Muscogee Nation and Florida. With her siblings, Clifton, Nathaniel, and Rechinda, Chaudhuri assisted in her parent's work. She was a civil rights activist as well as lobbyist for issues that affected Mvskokvlke people. Chaudhuri was a supporter and participant in many grassroots Indian activities, including the Youth and Elders' Conference, initiated by the late Phillip Deere.

She considered the most important part of her education to be that which was imparted by tribal elders, the teachings she learned at Greenleaf church grounds, and her work experiences. Chaudhuri had worked on many projects including: Creek oral history (upon which her unpublished book, "A Sacred Path: The Way of the Muscogee Creeks," is based); Seminole oral history, University of Florida; urban, rural, intertribal, and ethnic coalition work; Indian public policy development; alcohol prevention programs; educational programs; cultural and land preservation; writing, theater, dancing, and story telling; ecumenical work; spiritual counseling with the Arizona Department of Corrections; and appointments to various boards and commissions. She had testified before: councils; mayors; governors; legislative committees; and battled a multitude of bureaucracies.

She actively taught the Mvskokvlke teachings of the four seasons of a woman's life — spring, the age of learning; summer, the age of involvement; fall, the age of sharing and teaching; and winter, the age of wisdom.

Chaudhuri was preceded in death by: her grandparents; parents; and two brothers.

She is survived by: her husband, Joy; two sons, Joydev "Paul" Mahagi, and Jonodev "Jon" Osceola; her sister; a nephew, Lance; and mother-in-law, Sulata.

THOMAS PHILLIPS

EUFULA — Funeral services for Thomas "Culotkv" Phillips were held Dec. 28 at Artussee Indian Baptist Church with Revs. Dion Francis and Jimmy Alexander officiating.

He died Dec. 25 of a sudden illness in Tulsa. Phillips was born May 31, 1948 in Eufaula.

He served on active duty in the Army for 10 years

Treasury report narrative

prepared by the controller's office
Jan. 20, 1997

In accordance with National Council Act 88-70, section 112, as amended by NCA 89-37, the following information for the period ending Sept. 30, 1996 discloses the receipts, budget, encumbrances, expenditures, and unencumbrances for all funds under the control of the Muscogee (Creek) Nation.

The receipts are dollar amounts received for Fiscal Year 1996. The figures include, but are not limited to federal dollars received on a grant or contract, interest earned during the quarter, and revenues generated by the tribe. The total dollars spent represent the amount spent to date for the four quarters ending Sept. 30. The budget figure represents the amounts approved as of Sept. 30 in the annual comprehensive budget. The encumbered amounts include figures derived from outstanding purchase orders at the end of the quarter. Expended amounts state the total amount that has been spent for each department, within that fund. The unencumbered figures reflect the net available for each department at the end of Sept. 30. Any questions regarding this report may be directed to the office of the controller at (918) 756-8700, ext. 250.

Treasury report narrative

In accordance with National Council Act 88-70, section 112, as amended by NCA 89-37, the following information for the period ending Dec. 31, 1996 discloses the receipts, budget, encumbrances, expenditures, and unencumbrances for all funds under the control of the Muscogee (Creek) Nation.

The receipts are dollar amounts received for Fiscal Year 1996. The figures include but are not limited to federal dollars received on a grant or contract, interest earned during the quarter, and revenues generated by the tribe. The total dollars spent represent the amount spent to date for the four quarters ending Sept. 30. The budget figure represents the amounts approved as of Sept. 30, in the annual comprehensive budget. The encumbered amounts include figures derived from outstanding purchase orders at the end of the quarter. Expended amounts state the total amount that has been spent for each department, within that fund. The unencumbered figures reflect the net available for each department at the end of Sept. 30. Any questions regarding this report may be directed to the office of the controller at (918) 756-8700, ext. 250.

Tribal tax commission clarifies motor vehicle registration procedures

OKMULGEE — With the Muscogee Nation's recent implementation of motor vehicle registration are several issues related to sovereignty, tribal and state relations, social, and others.

Muscogee Nation Tax Commissioner Mike Factor has provided the following information for greater understanding of the nature of tribal taxation and the issues of motor vehicle registration.

Tribal authority to tax

The Muscogee Nation, as well as other tribes, are given their authority to tax by the U.S. Congress. This authority has been sustained by the U.S. Supreme Court. From the case Washington v. Confederated Tribes of the Colville Indian Reservation, (1980) comes the following:

A 1934 Opinion of the Solicitor of the Department of Interior reads, "Chief among the powers of sovereignty recognized as pertaining to an Indian Tribe is the power of taxation. Except where Congress has provided otherwise, this power may be exercised over members of the tribe and over nonmembers, so far as such nonmembers may accept privileges of trade, residence, etc. To which taxes may be attached as conditions. [emphasis added]."

The power to tax transactions [with non-Indians] occurring on trust lands and significantly involving a Tribe or its members is a fundamental attribute of sovereignty which the Tribes retain unless divested of it by federal law or necessary implication of their dependent status."

Indian-owned vehicles and the state

Again, in an opinion issued by the U.S. Supreme Court, in the case of Oklahoma Tax Commission v. Sac and Fox Nation, decided May 17, 1993, the restriction against past taxation was established.

The U.S. Supreme Court based its ruling on Moe v. Confederated Salish and Kootenia Tribes, the state's vehicle taxes were flatly prohibited. Oklahoma cannot impose any back taxes when citizens sell or trade vehicles with a Muscogee Nation license tag.

The state issued instructions to local tag agents in light of the above cited court decisions, to recognize tags of the other 49 states.

They have imposed an additional requirement for Indians. When a tribal member sells or trades a vehicle with a tribal tag and tribal registration, an original or certified copy of the owner's certificate degree of Indian blood (CDIB), or tribal enrollment card or certificate.

This differs from the treatment of vehicle owners from other states, as they are not required to prove they are citizens of another state. It is, in essence, legislated discrimination.

The Muscogee Nation Citizenship Board has designed a document which meets the above criteria. There is no blood quantum or enrollment number, reducing the chance of forgeries or other misuse.

Out-of-state travel

There have been unsubstantiated reports of harassment and other indignities imposed on tribal members travelling out of state in a vehicle registered with the tribe.

Every state should recognize tribal license tags as a foreign tag, however because of the newness of tags and unfamiliarity with this right and process one might be stopped.

It is advised to keep vehicle registration and a copy of tribal enrollment in the vehicle at all times.

"If you are stopped for license plate jurisdiction, please have the law enforcement officials to call the lighthouse department to verify registration," Factor said. "If problems persist, contact the tribal attorney general."

This does not exempt the owner from adherence to applicable laws of motor vehicle operation.

The owner and the vehicle are subject to all laws of the jurisdiction in which you are driving and your

Young Creek women sought for Miss Mvskoke Nation

OKMULGEE — The Miss Mvskoke Nation pageant has extended its boundary requirement to include young Muscogee ladies living throughout the state of Oklahoma. The pageant will kickoff the 23rd Annual Creek Nation Festival and Rodeo on Thurs., June 19.

Judging

The MMCN committee is currently planning for the event and is encouraging interested, young, Muscogee ladies to apply. Contestants will be judged on performance in the following six categories: essay; interview; poise and personality; traditional dress; talent; and impromptu question.

Orientation and interview

The interview category questions will be based on information obtained at an orientation on tribal government and culture. The orientation will be held from 9 to 11 a.m., June 14 in the independent agencies (mound) auditorium at the tribal capitol complex, U.S. Highway 75 and loop 56.

Lunch will be served from 11 a.m. to noon. The interview category will consist of individual contestant questioning by five judges to be held from 1 to 4 p.m. A walk-through practice will be held from 4 to 7 p.m.

Pageant

The auditorium will be available for contestant use on the day of the pageant. The pageant will begin at 7 p.m., June 19. A reception will be held for Miss Mvskoke Nation 1997-98 following the pageant.

Requirements

Applicants must:

- be at least one-quarter blood, enrolled Muscogee;
- be between the ages of 16 and 21 on the date of the pageant;
- never married or have a child;
- not cohabit before or during reign;
- live within the state of Oklahoma;
- submit three letters of recommendation;
- submit a 500-word essay on why they are seeking the title; and
- attend the orientation workshop on Muscogee government and culture.

Application

Applications may be obtained from committee chair Rita Williams at Muscogee Nation Head Start. She may also be contacted by calling 1 (800) 482-1979, ext. 337 or (918) 756-8700, ext. 337 or writing: Attn. Miss Mvskoke Nation Committee,

P.O. Box 580, Okmulgee, OK 74447. Applications must be postmarked by June 7.

Williams is encouraging all tribal royalty and former Muscogee Nation princesses and rodeo queens to attend the pageant. She requests that they notify her prior to the pageant date.

National Council supplements vision program and others at March session

OKMULGEE — The Muscogee (Creek) National Council considered several supplemental appropriations at its March regular session.

Among the programs receiving the additional funding was the tribal vision program. The Council took $12,000 from the Docket 275 and Interest on the Permanent Fund accounts for the program (see related article, page 4).

The vote for the bill (National Council Act 97-32) was unanimous (24-0). Voting yes were (representatives listed in alphabetical order, followed by district):

Larry Bible, Tulsa had left the meeting at this time and did not vote. Speaker Wilbur Gouge conducted the meeting and did not vote.

In other business, the Council:

- approved (19-6) an appropriation of $2,550 from the interest on the permanent fund for construction of bathroom and shower facilities at Tallahassee Ceremonial Ground. Voting for NCA 97-23 were: Berryhill, Wagoner-Rogers-Mayes; Bible, Tulsa; Bruner, Tulsa; I. Cleghorn, Tulsa; R. Cleghorn, Tulsa; Ellis, Okmulgee; Gillespie, Wagoner-Rogers-Mayes; Hale, Okmulgee; Johnson, Okfuskee; Kelley, Tulsa; Lewis, Okmulgee; Little, Muskogee; Lowe, Tukvptce; A. McIntosh, Okmulgee; T. McIntosh, McIntosh; Pickering, McIntosh; Smith, Okfuskee; Tiger, Creek; and Wheeler, Creek.

Voting no were: Buck, Tukvptce; Chupco, Muskogee; Nichols, Okmulgee; Warrington, Creek;

Watson, Okfuskee; and Yahola, Tukvptce;

- approved (22-3) and amendment to NCA 95-87, clarifying the minimum financial management standards for tribal communities, particularly regarding nepotism.

Voting for NCA 97-25 were: Bible, Tulsa; Bruner, Tulsa; Buck, Tukvptce; Chupco, Muskogee; I. Cleghorn, Tulsa; R. Cleghorn, Tulsa; Ellis, Okmulgee; Gillespie, Wagoner-Rogers-Mayes; Hale, Okmulgee; Johnson, Okfuskee; Kelley, Tulsa; Lewis, Okmulgee; Little, Muskogee; Lowe, Tukvptce; A. McIntosh, Okmulgee; Nichols, Okmulgee; Smith, Okfuskee; Tiger, Creek; Warrington, Creek; Watson, Okfuskee; Wheeler, Creek; and Yahola, Tukvptce.

Voting no were: Berryhill, Wagoner-Rogers-Mayes; T. McIntosh, McIntosh; Pickering, McIntosh;

- rejected (11-14) an amendment to NCA 96-55 that would have made the Tulsa Creek Indian Community as the sponsor for the Council Oak Ceremony with the City of Tulsa. Voting for NCA 97-26 were: Berryhill, Wagoner-Rogers-Mayes; Bible, Tulsa; Buck, Tukvptce; I. Cleghorn, Tulsa; R. Cleghorn, Tulsa; Lowe, Tukvptce; Pickering, McIntosh; Smith, Okfuskee; Tiger, Creek; and Wheeler, Creek.

Voting no were: Bruner, Tulsa; Chupco, Muskogee; Ellis, Okmulgee; Gillespie, Wagoner-Rogers-Mayes; Hale, Okmulgee; Johnson, Okfuskee; Lewis, Okmulgee; Little, Muskogee; A. McIntosh, Okmulgee; T. McIntosh, McIntosh; Nichols, Okmulgee; Warrington, Creek; Watson, Tukvptce; and Yahola, Tukvptce;

- approved unanimous (25-0) a bill adopting an official alphabet for the Muscogee Nation. The alphabet to be used is the one developed and adopted at the Old Agency in 1853;

- approved (21-4) an appropriation to the Northeast District of the United Methodist Church. The $1,000 was taken from the interest on the permanent fund account. Voting no were: I. Cleghorn, Tulsa; Nichols, Okmulgee; Warrington, Creek; and Watson, Okfuskee;

There are eligibility and other requirements to be met before the tribe issues a license tag.

One must be an enrolled member (verified by citizenship card) of the Muscogee Nation and live within the jurisdictional constitutional boundaries as defined in the 1979 Muscogee (Creek) Nation Constitution.

The owner will have to pay the full cost of a license tag since the tribe does not subsidize these costs. The cost of the license tag is based upon the factory delivered price of the vehicle and the number of years it has been registered.

A federal court ruling prevents Oklahoma from charging back taxes on vehicles registered by tribal governments when a subsequent owner seeks to obtain an Oklahoma title. As part of the ruling, the Court limited tribal motor vehicle registration exclusively to their respective tribal members.

This is not to be confused with vehicles owned by vehicle be it tribal, state, county, or city. In Oklahoma, use of a public road gives the state implied consent. The tribal license tag does not exempt anyone from any laws, and law enforcement officials may cite for traffic violations.

Title surrender

When the state title has been surrendered, a new title and registration under the jurisdiction of the Muscogee Nation will be issued.

The new title will have all of the information presently included in the state title, except the vehicle is now registered under the Muscogee (Creek) Nation tag system instead of the state system.

The state does the same when registering a vehicle with them that has been registered and tagged in another state.

tribal governments that have an Oklahoma title showing sole ownership in the name of the federally recognized tribe. Vehicles owned by tribal governments may be issued an Indian tribal license plate and are excise tax exempt. [See Indian Tribal License Plates, Chapter 3 and Other Excise Exempt Situations, Chapter 4.]

Other state regulations are listed in Oklahoma Tax Commission Operating Manual for Motor Licensing Agents.

The Muscogee Nation processes motor vehicle registration at its office in the independent agencies (mound) building at the tribal capitol complex, U.S. Highway 75 and loop 56.

The office is open from 9 a.m. to noon, and 1 to 4 p.m. The telephone numbers for the tax commission, attorney general, and lighthouse administration are: (918) 756-8700; and within Oklahoma, 1 (800) 482-1979, exts. 315, 301, and 444 respectively.

Health services

Community health reps to attend training

OKMULGEE — The Muscogee Nation Community Health Representative (CHR) program staff will attend the national triennial education conference in Tulsa April 28 through May 1. The CHR office in Okmulgee will be closed during these dates. The conference is held every three years and provides an opportunity for representatives to receive continuing education and network. Its office at the Oakdale Facility, just south of Okmulgee, will open at its regular time May 2.

CHR program to open additional office

OKEMAH — Muscogee Nation Community Health Representative program is making changes to become more accessible to a greater number of tribal communities. Among the changes are relocation of program staff serving Hughes, Okfuskee, and southern Okmulgee districts to Creek Nation Community Hospital on May 5.

Clients residing in these service areas may call the tribal hospital at (918) 623-1424, or toll free at 1 (888) 623-4397 to request services or more information. Walk-in requests can be made at the Okemah CHR office, to be located in the former behavioral health wing at the hospital.

Those requesting services residing in other areas may call the Okmulgee office at (918) 756-1941 or toll free at 1 (800) 398-5379.

Tribal vision program guidelines set

OKMULGEE — The Muscogee Nation Community Health Representatives program will begin taking requests for assistance for the tribal vision program May 5. Requests will be taken by telephone only at (918) 756-1941 or toll free at 1 (800) 398-5379.

Health care education-water, sewer services offered

Emergency medical services offers CPR

OKEMAH — The Muscogee Nation Emergency Medical Services will offer cardiopulmonary resuscitation classes in its heart saver and health care provider course. The CPR classes are free; an American Heart Association card may be obtained for $3 with the provision of a copy of the course participant's certificate degree of Indian blood (CDIB).

The EMS is offering the classes to tribal citizens. The heart saver course is a basic class that will cover children and adult CPR and relieving obstructed airways. Monthly classes are offered to the public at Creek Nation Community Hospital.

The program offers a health care provider course. The advanced level CPR class is intended for persons in the health care field. Arrangements to enroll in the class may be made through the EMS program.

The Muscogee Nation Emergency Medical Services program provides the tribe and Okfuskee county residents with emergency medical care using the latest equipment and technology; its ambulances are equipped with the most modern medical equipment available.

All EMS employees are licensed by the Oklahoma State Department of Health and the National Registry of Emergency Medical Technicians. They are certified to provide advanced cardiac life support, pedi-

After a request has been received, an application with program guidelines will be mailed. The application should be completed and returned in the postage paid envelope provided with the application.

Guidelines for the tribal vision program are proof of tribal membership and residence within the state of Oklahoma.

Assistance will be provided once per year with funds dispensed according to the following priorities:

- documented original allottees;
- school-age children (five to 18 years old) and those over 50;
- all other eligible citizens possessing a physical disability impairing vision. A medical statement documenting the impairment must be provided to the program

All others will be eligible during the last quarter of the fiscal year — July, August, and September;

Guidelines require that:

- the Muscogee Nation be payer of last resort for services provided by the vision program. Optometrists will be responsible for collecting from third party sources prior to any payment made through the program;
- applicants submit all required documentation with their completed applications through the mail prior to approval;
- walk-in applications are unacceptable;
- eligible applicants may receive up to $150 for vision assistance with $60 for examination and $90 for eyeglasses. Repairs may be funded also. Contact lenses are allowable if required medically, although not for cosmetic purposes; and
- approval of applications is dependent upon the availability of funds.

Requests for program applications can be made beginning May 5 through the CHR program at (918) 756-1941 or toll free 1 (800) 398-5379.

Muscogee office holds royalty owners meet

HENRYETTA — The Bureau of Indian Affairs Muskogee Area Office will sponsor an oil and gas conference for Muskogee (Creek) mineral owners beginning at 9:30 a.m., April 16 at the Guest House Inn (formerly the Holiday Inn) at Henryetta.

The conference is designed to create a greater awareness of the administration and monitoring of oil and gas royalties.

Royalty owners experiencing problems with payments or leasing matters will have the opportunity to discuss these issues during the morning session of the conference. Royalty owners are asked to bring relevant documents such as lease copies, payment stubs, division orders, etc., to allow the staff to review and facilitate assistance. Representatives from the minerals management service, bureau of land management, and individual Indian monies staffs will be present during the morning session.

Representatives from the BIA Muskogee Area Office, BIA Okmulgee Agency, Muskogee Nation realty and trust, Tulsa field solicitor, and others will be available for questions during the afternoon session.

Employee elected to education office

OKMULGEE — Muscogee Nation Higher Education and Scholarship Officer Channena Davis has been elected vice-president of the Oklahoma Indian Higher Education Scholarship Administration Association for 1997.

The organization is committed to the promotion of unity among Indians for the pursuit of higher education, including enrollment. Davis, a tribal member from Hanna, administers the BIA Scholarship Program for the tribe. Davis has been the higher education and scholarship officer since 1989.

Minnie Myers Carlton

by Stephanie Berryhill

Although Tulofv Mucvse Church member Betsey Berryhill had eloped with a non-Indian man of the Catholic faith — she was staunch in imposing her beliefs about marriage upon her seven children.

Betsey Berryhill Myers was convinced that her children should never leave her home — certainly not to marry and homestead with white people. She, herself, had known the difficulties of a mixed marriage. After she “ran off” with W.F. Myers, her family — notably her mother, Peggy Anderson Berryhill — refused to acknowledge the union.

“That was just taboo back then. They just practically disowned her because she married a white man,” said Betsey’s granddaughter, Mary Brady.

So Betsey kept her children secluded to her Bald Hill area allotment [“Bryan Township”], participating in neither Indian or non-Indian church or community activities.

As Betsey and W.F. bore more children, her mother eventually came around.

“Grandpa did eventually take her back and let her visit. He would [have] before, but they just didn’t want him around,” Mary said.

Betsey’s second child, Jefferson, was the only one of her children that was taught the Mvskoke language. W.F. learned the language and conversed in his wife’s native tongue when in-laws made infrequent visits.

“One time aunt Effa [Berryhill Miller] came to visit. I was surprised; he could talk pretty good,” Minnie said.

Minnie Lottie Myers was born August 30, 1896 just west of her mother’s allotment. She was born in a dugout and spent the first several years of her life in the primitive dwelling.

Minnie explained that the walls were built-up with logs. The top of the structure was made of split logs which were covered with dirt; the earth served as its flooring also.

Artist's work makes connection with those that have gone before us

It has been nearly a decade since Muscogee tribal citizen Bobby C. Martin opened a box of family photographs that made a paramount impact on his life.

Before he probably realized it, initial curiosity turned into a drive just short of obsession. Initially bent on preserving his finds, Martin scanned his grandmother's old Deep Fork Hillabee church, Dwight Mission, and fam-

"These images, drawn mainly from old family albums, serve as personal icons, connections to a cultural legacy that I continue to discover. Through the filter of distance, my art looks back to see forward, documenting the struggle to draw these distant images closer, literally and spiritually, to both the artist and the viewer," reads his artist's statement.

Martin works in several mediums, including acrylics, pastels and pencil. His work is not exclusively based on old photos, although they do provide inspiration upon which he creates original work — sometimes combining or altering images taken from personal photos, resources, and American Indian symbolism.

He considers himself to be a printmaker primarily. Martin creates small editions of works using various printing techniques including: etchings; lithographs; mixed media works incorporating etched and aquatinted plates, lithographic photo transfers, and monotypes.

Martin believes most people can relate to his artwork because viewing it brings to memory images in old family photo albums. "Everybody has these photographs — that's what's neat about them; anyone can relate to them regardless of whether they're Indian or non-Indian. It's about the past and where we come from."

Now categorized with the likes of Woody Crumbo and Acee BlueEagle, he is the first appointed artist-in-residence at Gilcrease Museum since Willard Stone.

Martin has a bachelor of arts degree from Northeastern State University with a double major in fine arts and Indian studies. He received a master of fine arts degree in printmaking-drawing from the University of Arkansas. His work is owned nationally and internationally by museums, private, and public collectors.

Martin was raised in Tahlequah where he and his wife, Stephanie, and their children reside. He is the son of Bonnie and Bill Martin of Tahlequah and the grandson of the late R.W. and Mabel Carr Herron.

ily photographs into his computer.

The Kecopatokv Tribal Town member was always aware of his Mvskokvlke heritage, though he had not been raised in a Mvskoke community or around the language and traditions. "Digging through the old photographs was like opening up a new world. I was really [culturally] ignorant, but I was not ignorant about my family history," Martin said at an American Indian Heritage Center-sponsored lecture last year.

After the photos had been preserved, Martin would not put them away. He began creating artwork based on the photographs — some of them in larger-than-life sizes.

"These works explore the rich cultural textures of Native American life as I have personally experienced them — primarily from a distance.

1997 Creek Nation Festival and Rodeo announcements

Litefoot performance

Rap performer and motion picture artist Litefoot will headline the 1997 Creek Nation Festival and Rodeo entertainment. The Red Vinyl Records act is scheduled to perform at the Muscogee Nation Omnplex, June 20.

Litefoot received favorable reviews for his performance in the film Indian in the Cupboard. He has been touring nationally after the release of his latest compact disc, Good Day to Die.

"We are very excited to have such a star to perform for the kids at this year's festival," said committee member Edwin Marshall. "In keeping with the theme 'The Nation's youth: learning from the past, leading to the future,' I feel Litefoot's music is very appropriate."

Marshall who is the tribe's deputy director of community services, said the tribal health administration was instrumental with its sponsorship of this event. The health administration will also be promoting its healthy life-styles campaign.

Joint festivals run

The Creek Nation Festival run will be a joint affair with the Okmulgee Pecan Festival. Other changes are a new course and distance.

The event will now be 8 kilometers and will begin at 7:30 a.m., June 21. The starting line will be at the Creek Council House Museum in downtown Okmulgee. The race is being coordinated by the Glen's Racing Service and is certified by U.S. Track and Field.

Entry fee through June 14 is $10 and $12 to June 21, and includes a t-shirt. Without a t-shirt, the fee is $8. To register by mail, address correspondence to Joint Festivals Run, 1304 W. Eufaula, Okmulgee, OK 74447.

Juried art show

Creek Nation Festival and Rodeo committee will sponsor a juried art exhibition and sale in conjunction with the Festival. The show, beginning June 19 and continuing through June 27, will include viewing of both professional and student art works.

The exhibit will open with a reception, judging, a previewing of the work June 19. The artists are expected to attend. All professional art work will be for sale.

The exhibit will include two shows: the professional juried exhibition with their works for sale; and a student juried art show. Each artist will be limited to three pieces. The top three works deemed best will be recognized as well as an honorable mention.

The three categories for judging will include:

- paintings — all media, watercolor, acrylics, charcoal, etc.;
- sculpture — wood, clay, stone, etc.; and
- textiles — basketry, weaving, etc.

All entrants must provide proof of enrollment citizens of the Muscogee (Creek) Nation. Deadline for entry is May 30.

to have been a large burden for a young girl. As the eldest child, she served as surrogate mother to six siblings while her mother tended the fields and orchard. Minnie recalls that her responsibilities included housework, cooking, milking their cow, and chopping cotton also.

Minnie attended Bald Hill school and Okmulgee High School. She and her sister, Frances, attended Eufaula Boarding School for two years, an experience she recalls as unpleasant. "...too many nasty talking and mean girls!" Visits home were few, as her father had to take the girls by team to Morris. At Morris they boarded a train that took them to Eufaula. Minnie attended finishing school at Kid Key College in Sherman, Texas.

Betsey's influence upon her eldest daughter was such that Minnie did not leave her home until she was around 40 years old.

"She was mad at the rest of them because they got married and left home," recalls the 100-year-old allottee.

Her allotment, located around five miles north of Morris, had been vacant until she let Bald Hill widower Henry Carlton and his children rent the property. She had him build a house on allotment and they were married shortly after the house was completed.

"Grandmother just threw a fit. [Grandmother] married a white man, but she didn't want her children marrying one. For a long time she wouldn't let [aunt Minnie] have her [belongings]," Mary said.

Editor's note: Minnie belongs to the Wind Clan and Kyncate Tribal Town. She is the granddaughter of Jefferson Berryhill. She has two nieces, Mary Brady and Shirley Kopfle, both of Okmulgee. Minnie and original enrollee Polly Miller Homma, 97, of Okmulgee, are first cousins.

Minnie retains the ownership of her allotment.

She has one sister living, Maude Nora Miller. She and Maude, the youngest of her siblings, are roommates at Rebold Manor in Okmulgee.

It is probable that Minnie is the oldest living original enrollee, although the Muscogee Nation Citizenship Board cannot verify this as it is not always notified of the occurrence of citizens' deaths.

DORETHA VINCENT

TULSA — Funeral services for Doretha Stubbs Vincent were held March 3 at Carbondale Church of Christ with Revs. Marty Kessler, Phillip Coon, and Bobby Woodfield officiating.

Vincent died Feb. 27. She was born on Feb. 14, 1922 in Paden to Joe Martin and Effie Gretchen Powers Beaver. She was the daughter of the Raccoon Clan and Tukvptce Tribal Town.

Vincent began a career in journalism during World War II at the Okmulgee Daily Times and worked for Retherford Publications for over 20 years. She received numerous awards for her Tulsa County News column "West of the River." She was named to "Who's Who in American Women" for 1975-76. She received many awards from organizations such as: Veterans of Foreign Wars Ladies Auxiliary; Camp Fire Girls; Tulsa Area Safety Council; the U.S. Army; Southwest Tulsans Inc.; and Red Fork Lions. She has resided in west Tulsa since 1956.

She was preceded in death by: her parents; one sister, Elizabeth Kopfle; one grandson, John Crow IV; and her late husbands, Everett W. Stubbs and James M. Vincent.

Vincent is survived by: one brother, Joe M. Beaver of Scottsdale, Ariz.; three daughters, Barbara Goodman of Henryetta, Donna Powders and Shelly Crow, both of Tulsa; stepson and daughter, Jimmy Vincent and Peggy Yales, both of Stigler; five grandsons; one granddaughter; four great-granddaughters; and three great-grandsons.

Burial was in Floral Haven Cemetery, Veterans' Field of Honor.

Memorial donations may be sent to: John Crow IV Memorial Scholarship Fund, First National Bank of Henryetta, P.O. Box 610, Henryetta, OK 74437-0610.

THOMAS PHILLIPS

The obituary submission received for Thomas Phillips, which was published in The Muscogee Nation News, March 1997, did not include his brother — Bill Phillips of Muskogee.

Council races draw fifty-four; six unopposed

OKMULGEE — Fifty-four candidates filed for 26 Muscogee (Creek) National Council seats commencing officially the 1997 Muscogee Nation election season.

With one exception — Irene Cleghorn of Tulsa — each current representative is seeking reelection. Three other representatives, Steve Bruner of Broken Arrow, Ron Cleghorn of Tulsa, and George Tiger of Sapulpa, are seeking other seats from their respective districts. Six incumbents drew no opponents. They are: Larry Bible of Glenpool; Johnson Buck of Holdenville; Helen Chupco and Harley Little, both of Muskogee; Thomas McIntosh of Stidham; and Tommy Pickering of Eufaula.

The primary election is Oct. 25 with the general election Dec. 6. Absentee registration closes Oct. 1 and precinct registration closes Oct. 15. Any enrolled tribal citizen 18 years old or older with proof of valid citizenship is eligible to vote.

Registered tribal voters that have relocated are requested to report changes of address to the election board. Citizens that have not declared a district should do so in order to vote. For more information, contact the election board at: (918) 756-8700, ext. 350; or 1 (800) 482-1979.

One candidate challenge was lodged in the race for Tukvptce District Seat B by incumbent Thomas Yahola against David Yargee. Yahola contends Yargee does not meet the residency requirement for district representative. No date had been set for the hearing at press time.

Council representatives are compensated with a monthly stipend of $800. The speaker and second speaker receive $1,000 and $900 monthly respectively. Representatives are authorized to receive expense reimbursements for travel, lodging, etc., as well as other expenses associated with the performance of their duties.

Notice to our readers

The printing of this edition of The Muscogee Nation News was delayed to provide information of the 1997 Muscogee (Creek) National Council election in this fiscal year which ends Sept. 30.

The Muscogee Nation Communications Department operates with a portion of the funds from the tribe's self-governance compact and the indirect cost pool. The entire appropriation for self-governance as determined by the tribe's annual funding agreement is $3.7 million. Funding requests for self-governance programs totalled $4.7 million. Overall, it is estimated the 1998 budget requests by all programs exceed all funds by $2.8 million.

This is a tribe attempting to meet unlimited wants with limited resources. Programs receiving self-governance funds were told to cut operating budgets by 30 percent. Other federally funded programs will operate in FY 1998 at 100 percent.

In 1989, the communications department received $272,000 and had a seven-member staff. For fiscal year 1997, the department received $224,453 — $175,686 from the self-governance compact — and has a staff of four. In an attempt to meet the administrative directive, approximately 29 percent was eliminated. The department is expected to receive $126,183 in self-governance funds.

Letters to the editor

Citizen reflects on Macon

Editor:

The three of us leaned over the Otis Redding Bridge in Macon, Ga., watching the olive green waters of the Ocmulgee River rolling swiftly toward the Atlantic Ocean. We are as diverse as the city itself — a traditional medicine man, a woman of tradition and Christianity, and myself.

At dusk, the Macon traffic sped by, some honking with the intent to rouse us while we remained at the side of the bridge, fascinated by the history revealed below us.

Snapping turtles floated to the top as if to greet us. Catfish fed near the shore inching along gulping bits of food among the algae-covered rocks. The water had an oily coating but it did not detract from the importance of this great river in the lives of the ancient Mvskokulke.

Not far from us lay the great temple mounds of our ancestors. We climbed the mounds and viewed the skyline of the old southern town. But it was the river that held our interest, the river of a million memories for a million people.

We watched a man settle on the bank to cast his bait-laden hooks to the lazy catfish, full from their earlier feeding. With no bites, he moved on.

We might have seemed idle to the traffic, but the three of us withdrew into ourselves in an attempt to see the river as the Mvskokulke did when they fished, bathed, and swam in the water accompanied by the constant singing of cicadas.

I was reminded of hot summers, eating lunch while sitting on my cotton sack in Fame bottom. Macon: a paradise with memories and tears waiting for our children. We took our time, ignoring the vibration beneath our feet, as the large trucks rumbled across the bridge. Seldom, do we adults get to do this.

The large trees were placed in perspective by the river. Here and there was litter, but the river's dignity surpassed the undignified pollution. I wish to have seen the river in its earlier years when, perhaps, its water was clear. One glimpse backward in time would satisfy my soul's craving to see before De Soto's arrival, when tawny tinted men rowed their canoes following the river's lead to their tribal towns.

A hard life by our standard of living, but acclimated and existing in a sense of mystery whose solution eludes even the archaeologist. Oh Georgia, the hold you have on our hearts.

Her history is quiet this day. The three of us were still, feeling the river while drawing its fragrance. We imagined a time of the river's holiness when it was revered. There on the banks of the river in July, our spirits revived by the holiness as we understood it, was again living within us.

Sandra Peters, Okmulgee

El Reno man commends citizen

Editor:

The Oklahoma Indian Nation Powwow Committee held its annual powwow at Concho in August. A special dance was held in honor of Muscogee citizen Dave Jackson and Conner Cephus, a boy he rescued from a swollen river. Dave is a member of Oklahoma Indian Nation. Our club, along with many others, helped dance with Dave and Conner. This was a great honor for them and us.

On behalf of OIN, I want to share this good news with your readers. Perhaps there can be additional recognition for Dave. It is newsworthy to see a young Indian man do something so remarkable.

Amos Kaulaity, El Reno

Editor's note: Kaulaity is vice-chair of OIN. The report of Jackson's heroism appeared in the June edition of The Muscogee Nation News.

The MNN criticized for excluding sculptor

Editor:

Having attended the Creek Nation Festival, I looked forward to the issue of The Muscogee Nation News with pictures and stories. I was particularly anxious to see credit paid to Muscogee citizen and Hickory Ground descendant, Dan Brooks. He is an artist who made the beautiful bronze bust of former Principal Chief Claude Cox. There was no mention of the artist. This fine young sculptor from Okemah is becoming known nationwide, but among his own people he is not even mentioned. Give credit where credit is due. Shame.

Martha Merideth, Okemah

Editor's note: The MNN accepts submissions from tribally enrolled artists and publishes their accomplishments regularly. Further, there was no photo opportunity afforded The MNN as Dan Brooks was not a part of nor even mentioned during the official ceremonial unveiling of the bust of Claude Cox bust.

Clarification

Okmulgee District Representative Dave Lewis was present at the May 24 regular session of the Muscogee (Creek) National Council. A reporter's error listed him absent. It should have been reported Tukvptce District Representative Dwayne Lowe, did not attend the meeting.

Chief vetoes proposed amendment

OKMULGEE — Principal Chief Perry Beaver has vetoed National Council Act 97-89 approved by the Muscogee (Creek) National Council at its August regular session.

The 26-member legislative body approved NCA 97-89 to change the spelling of the tribe's official name from The Muscogee (Creek) Nation to Mvskoke Nation. The tribal constitution, adopted in 1979, establishes the official name of the tribe at Article 1 section 1, though the bill did not identify which sections of the constitution will be affected.

In his veto message, the Chief said amendments to the tribal constitution should be specific with each amended portion identified before being placed before tribal voters.

The proposed amendment was approved 24-1. Voting for the amendment were (representatives listed alphabetically, followed by district): Richard Berryhill, Wagoner-Rogers-Mayes; Larry Bible, Tulsa; Steve Bruner, Tulsa; Johnson Buck, Tukvptce; Helen Chupco, Muskogee; Irene Cleghorn, Tulsa; A.D. Ellis, Okmulgee; Barbara Gillespie, Wagoner-Rogers-Mayes; Anderson Hale, Okmulgee; Clyde Johnson, Okfuskee; Jess Kelley, Tulsa; Dave Lewis, Okmulgee; Harley Little, Muskogee; Dwayne Lowe, Tukvptce; Abe McIntosh, Okmulgee; Thomas McIntosh, McIntosh; David Nichols, Okmulgee; Tommy Pickering, McIntosh; Bruce Smith, Okfuskee; George Tiger, Creek; Phyllis Warrington, Creek; Nancy Watson, Okfuskee; Earl Wheeler, Creek; and Thomas Yahola, Tukvptce.

Voting no was Ron Cleghorn, Tulsa. Speaker Wilbur Gouge conducted the meeting and did not vote.

The Council is expected to consider the veto message at its September meeting.

In other business, the Council:

- approved NCA 97-86 (23-1-1) authorizing the community development department access to its revolving fund account. Voting no was Berryhill, Wagoner-Rogers-Mayes. Abstaining was Gillespie, Wagoner-Rogers-Mayes;

- approved unanimously NCA 97-87 (25-0) an amendment to the Muscogee Nation Fuel Tax Act of 1995 (NCA 95-89);

- approved (23-3) NCA 97-90 a bill appropriating funds for honorariums to participating ceremonial grounds at the Council Oak Tree ceremony in Tulsa. Voting no were: Warrington, Creek; Watson, Okfuskee; and Wheeler, Creek;

- returned to committee (23-3) NCA 97-92 a waiver for the elderly nutrition program releasing their obligation for office space rental at $16.50. Voting not to return to committee were: Ellis, Lewis, and Nichols, all of Okmulgee; and

- approved (24-1) NCA 97-73, a bill rescinding NCA 97-94. The Council had approved the purchase of 40.86 acres near 151st Street South and state highway 67 at its July session. A review of the land description precipitated the Council's action. Voting no was I. Cleghorn, Tulsa.

Thlopthlocco tribal town sues Interior secretary for funds

MUSKOGEE — Thlopthlocco Tribal Town has filed suit against the U.S. Department of Interior Secretary Bruce Babbitt for more than $1 million of federal funds and additional monies for damages and legal fees.

The suit, filed in U. S. District Court in August, alleges Babbitt failed to reply to the tribal town's contracting proposal to administer programs and services under the Indian Self-Determination and Education Assistance Act and for contracting with the Muscogee Nation for self-governance funds.

The act, known also as Public Law 93-638 was passed in 1975 and amended by P.L. 100-472 in 1988. The amendments established self-governance and the annual funding agreement as vehicles for transferring funds from the Bureau of Indian Affairs to the tribe for the administration of programs and services.

The Muscogee Nation has negotiated compacts with the federal government since fiscal year 1994 to provide services to Indians within its jurisdictional boundaries. The nation expects to receive more than $3.7 million for fiscal year 1998. Among the programs receiving self-governance funds are: higher education; lighthouse administration; social services; credit and finance; and the communications department.

Thlopthlocco is a federally recognized tribal town organized under the Oklahoma Indian Welfare Act. The tribal town has land holdings of approximately 2,200 acres and close to 600 members.

The tribal town attempted to contract for a law enforcement program in 1995. Since the nation provides law enforcement the proposal was denied by the secretary as federal funds cannot be distributed to the same service population.

Thlopthlocco objected and issued statements of non-concurrence regarding the nation's compact agreements with the government. The Muscogee Nation is the receiving entity for self-governance funds and provides services to Thlopthlocco members as well as the federally recognized tribal towns Alabama-Quarsarte and Kialegee.

Often cited as a justification for denying the town's proposal is overlapping membership or dual enrollment. Members of the three federally-recognized tribal towns have not been required to relinquish Muscogee Nation citizenship nor denied services on that basis.

Grace Bunner, Thlopthlocco chief, declined comment for this article citing the advice of the tribal town's attorney.

BIA Press secretary Thomas Sweeney said the government has filed a motion to dismiss the suit for lack of jurisdiction and because the Muscogee (Creek) Nation was not named as a defendant in the suit. Sweeney said there should be no affect on the fiscal year 1998 self-governance funding for the tribe.

Muscogee Nation Assistant Attorney General Jessie Durham said a ruling on the motions may not be given for some time. The motions will be considered in U.S. District Court for the Eastern District of Oklahoma in Muskogee.

Durham said the tribe has taken no legal action regarding the matter since the Muscogee Nation has not been named as a party in the suit.

"Our position is the [Muscogee Nation] already provides the services to Thlopthlocco as [they are] citizens of the tribe," Durham said. "The nation is much better suited to provide those services."

Citizen appointed to veterans commission

OKLAHOMA CITY — Muscogee citizen Jerry Riley has been appointed to the War Veterans Commission by Oklahoma Gov. Frank Keating.

The state senate approved and confirmed Riley's appointment, sponsored by state Sen. Ted Fisher, in May. His term will end July 2000. The commission is the controlling board of the Oklahoma Department of Veterans Affairs and is responsible for carrying out the laws passed by the Oklahoma legislature. Additionally, it administers the Oklahoma veterans program through a director appointed by and responsible to the commission.

Riley

Riley is the son of Theodore Roosevelt and the late Ida Clinton Riley. His grandparents were the late Moese Riley and Mattie Lou Phillips Riley Bruner and the late George and Sallie Hodge Clinton. Riley attended Bristow Public Schools, the University of Tulsa, Rogers State College, and the American University in Washington D.C. He served in the Army and was stationed in Germany. He is a Vietnam veteran, also.

He is the former chair of the Muscogee Nation Election Board. Riley was instrumental in writing the 1979 tribal constitution. Among memberships and positions he holds are: national chair, Native American Veterans Inter-tribal Association; member, Oklahoma Veterans Council; life member, quartermaster, and service officer, Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 3656; state chair, VFW homeless veterans; and veterans advisory board member for U.S. Sen. Jim Inhofe and Congressmen Tom Coburn and Steve Largent.

He and his wife, Margaret, reside in Bristow. They have five children; eight grandchildren; and one great-grandchild.

Mvskoke coach inducted into hall of fame

TULSA — Over 900 career wins at the high school level earned Tiger Mountain tribal citizen Wiley Riley an induction into the Oklahoma Coaches Association Hall of Fame in July.

Ryal is a 1959 graduate of Dewar High School where he was an all-conference performer in football. He was an all-state selection in basketball, performing in the 1959 Oklahoma-Texas Oil Bowl Basketball Game. He attended Northeastern State College, earning all-conference honors as a Redmen cager. He received his bachelor of science degree in 1964.

Ryal began his career at Freeman, Mo. in 1964. He returned home and began coaching at Dewar in 1965. Other coaching jobs included Inola, Wynnewood, Dewar, Henryetta, and Dewar for a third and final time. His Oklahoma coaching career includes a baseball won-loss record of 449-151, a basketball coaching record of 441-173 and a two year record of 13-5 as a head football coach at Inola. During his career, his teams accumulated 32 conference championships, 34 district championships, 10 regional championships, four area championships, two state runner-up finishes, and one state championship in baseball at Dewar in 1978. He was a member of the Oklahoma Coaches Association for 26 years. During this time, he coached six all-staters, including his son, Mark, who would later play five years of major league baseball. He was a north all-state baseball coach in 1980 and coached the Oklahoma All-Stars vs. California in 1982. In 1989, he was named District 5 National High School Baseball Coach of the Year and Region 5 Baseball Coach of the Year by the National High School Athletic Coaches Association. Dewar Public Schools showed their appreciation to for Ryals coaching career by naming its baseball field Wiley Ryals Field recently.

Ryal is the son of Deer Clan and Thlophlocco Tribal Town. He is the son of the late Willie and Ruth Ryals, Henryetta. His grandparents were the late Bunn and Annie Gray Ryals, Ryals.

Wiley and his wife, Barbara, are retired and live on Tiger Mountain where he is raising Limousin cattle. They have two children and four grandchildren.

Shellie Barber Griffith

Shellie Barber Griffith was born to Robert T. and Alice Ann Barber on Sept. 7, 1895 in Indian Territory south of present day Glenpool.

As the family had squatter's rights to the land, the acreage near her birthplace came into her possession when her father choose the location for her allotment in 1902.

Shellie can still recall some details of her birthplace, a log cabin home. "We had two fire places in [the] log house — one in the south and one in the north. Around the turn of the century her paternal grandfather, Silas H. Barber, was afflicted with small pox. Fearing contamination, her family burned the log cabin and rebuilt about 80 feet south of the location.

Her introduction to institutional education via Wealaka Mission [near Leonard] was likely stark for a girl of 10, although she never resided at the boarding school just off the southern banks of the Arkansas River. Shellie's parents made the 20-mile round-trip journey daily, by wagon and team, for one school year to have her and her sister, Dovie, educated. The mission was built in 1881. According to Shellie, a second mission was built on land owned by two-term Muscogee Nation Principal Chief Pleasant Porter. Porter had donated the land to reestablish the mission on land adjacent to his allotment. Shellie said that Porter is buried a short distance from the school in a family cemetery.

She was raised on her allotment until 1907. The family then moved to her father's allotment near Twin mounds [around two miles west of U.S. Highway 75 on 151st Street near the Tulsa-Creek county line]. There they built a home and dairy farm. She attended Twin Mounds school. Seeking higher education, she rode the distance on her white pony when a school was built in Glenpool and attended through the eighth grade — the highest attainable level. After she graduated, she stayed home. Shellie contends she had the favor of her parents because she was the youngest of seven children. With the exception of some gardening, her responsibilities were few and chores were light.

Shellie remembers the days before the rural-community-turned-boomtown came to be known as Glenpool. She was distantly related to the family of its namesake. When Robert and Ida Berryhill Glenn excavated limestone for the foundation of their home in 1905, oil oozed from the cuts. Seven years before the Cushing-Drumright oil fields were tapped, the discovery of oil on the Glenn Pool Field was responsible for making Oklahoma a major oil-producing region. It brought an influx of drifters, drillers, and roughnecks also — thus creating the boomtown. She recalls that the terrain of the area, once predominantly uninhabited, was dotted with tent homes. It was coined "Tent City" for a period before it became known as "Glenpool."

By 1915 it would not be uncommon for small, rural Oklahoma communities such as Glenpool to turn into cities in a matter of weeks. Undoubtedly the onslaught of humanity, industry, and opportunity which followed the oil boom affected the local inhabitants.

Quarterly treasury report narrative

In accordance with National Council Act 88-70, section 112, as amended by NCA 89-37, the following information for the period ending June 30, 1997 discloses the receipts, budget, encumbrances, expenditures, and unencumbrances for all funds under the control of the Muscogee (Creek) Nation.

The receipts are dollar amounts received for the first three quarters of FY 1997. The figures include but are not limited to federal dollars received on grant or contract, interest earned during the quarter, and revenues generated by the tribe. The total dollars spent represent the amount spent to date for the first two quarters ending June 30, 1997.

The budget figure represents the amounts approved as of June 30, 1997 in the annual comprehensive budget.

The encumbered amounts include figures derived from outstanding purchase orders at the end of the quarter.

Expended amounts state the total amount that has been spent for each department, within that fund.

Unencumbered figures reflect the net available for each department at the end of June 30, 1997. Any questions regarding this report may be directed to the office of the controller at (918) 756-8700, ext. 250.

Cuts

Of that amount, $48,265 will be spent for office space rental (increased $3 to $16.50 one year ago) and indirect cost (the money the tribe uses to administer its support services). Discretionary spending for the department, including personnel, postage, supplies, etc., is approximately $77,900. Quite simply, the communications department cannot produce and distribute The Muscogee Nation News in its current format. No decision has been made regarding the frequency of publication if any, in FY 1998.

Continue to address correspondence to Summer Barnes, Stephanie Berryhill, and Gerald Wofford in care of the communications department at P.O. Box 580, Okmulgee, OK 74447.

Other programs receiving self-governance funds are: adult vocational training; children and family services; citizenship; community development; credit and finance; cultural preservation; election board; higher education; home improvement; lighthouse administration; natural resources; office of justice; policy research; road construction; realty services; and social services.

He was the first person to complete requirements for the ministry in the Oklahoma Indian Missionary Conference.

He was an ordained elder of the United Methodist Church. Sullivan attended the University of Utah, Salt Lake City, and completed the course of study for the 21st Annual Session of the Utah School on Alcoholism and Other Drug Dependencies. He organized Alcoholics Anonymous at Yuma Mission, Yuma, Ariz. and served on the board as chaplain to its halfway house. He organized the Topeka Mission Church in 1961; the church was renamed the J.J. Sullivan Chapel. He organized the Lawrence Mission Church, Lawrence, Kan., in 1962. He was enlisted in Who's Who of the United Methodist Church in 1964. Among positions he held in the ministry: pastor, 18 local churches; OIMC Northeast District Superintendent, two years; and West District Superintendent, four years. Sullivan was an OIMC interpreter also.

He served on the Tulsa Cooperative Ministries Board and the Skyline Ministries Board in Oklahoma City. Sullivan was a member of Springtown UMC and the Northeast District Retired Minister Fellowship. He retired from the ministry on June 9, 1997.

He was a member of Thlopthlocco Tribal Town and served as first warrior for four years. Sullivan was a veteran of World War II, serving with the U.S. Navy First Class USNR from 1943 to 46; he was honorably discharged. He served in the National Guard of the U.S. Private Service Co. 180th Infantry.

He was preceded in death by: his parents; two brothers, Richard and Jack; and one sister, Hettie Burgess.

Survivors include: his wife of the home, Broken Arrow; two sons, James Lee of Tulsa and Obie B. of Broken Arrow; and one daughter, Peggy Tune of Roff; one sister, Mary Lou Smith of Matawan, N.J.; six grandsons; and two great-granddaughters; nieces; and nephews.

Pallbearers were: Dusty Miller; Warren Hakeah; Wendell Autabo; Luther Johnson; Johnny Johnson; and Winslow Johnson. Honorary pallbearers were OIMC pastors.

MICHAEL TIGER

TULSA — Funeral services for Michael "Skipper" Ray Tiger were held Aug. 5 at Ninde Garden Chapel with Revs. John Fixico and Dion Francis officiating.

Tiger died Aug. 1 at his home. He was born July 6, 1942 to Prentice and Hettie Mae Tiger. He belonged to the Bear Clan and Koweta Tribal Town.

He graduated from Rogers High School. Following graduation he moved to Oklahoma City. He attended and was baptized at Westlawn Baptist Church. He was employed at Oklahoma Graphics for 16 years. Upon moving to Tulsa in 1993, he served as Sunday school superintendent at Wekiwa Baptist Church in Sand Springs.

He was preceded in death by his parents.

Tiger is survived by: one son, Jason Winston Tiger of Anadarko; and two daughters, Danieala Jean Tiger of Anadarko, and Samarian Mae Tiger of Oklahoma City; two brothers, Robert James Tiger, and Prentice

Sullivan

Daniel Tiger, both of Tulsa; three sisters, Sharon Elaine Neil, Louise Wisdom, both of Tulsa, and Charlene Keah-Tigh of Miami; nephews; nieces; and cousins.

Pallbearers were: J.R. Wisdom; Matthew Wisdom; Michael Wisdom; Roger Butler; Vincent Thomas; Darren Keah-Tigh; and Dan Fisher.

Gratitude

We would like to express our sincere appreciation to those that called, visited, sent flowers, and those that sent cards before and after the death of our loved one.

A special thank you is extended to Springtown United Methodist Church for preparing a wonderful evening meal. We thank the following also: Muscogee Nation; Rev. Harry Long; Newman Frank Jr.; Davis Chapel UMC; Thlopthlocco Tribal Town; Koweta Indian Community; the color guard; pallbearers; and Shurden Funeral Home.

Your kindness and thoughtful expressions of sympathy are appreciated and gratefully acknowledged — we pray that God will continue to bless all of you.

Taking advantage of the local economy, Shellie's father owned and operated a drug store on what is currently known as Main Street and Broadway. According to family genealogy records, he became the first sheriff of Glenpool in 1907.

With the growth of the area's populace, commercial entertainment in the form of beer joints and dance halls were in demand.

"When I was young you could buy anything you wanted to down pool hall, gambling shacks."

One of her favorite pastimes was riding her pony as well as dancing — whether it be at square dances held in peoples' homes or in the lodge above her father's store.

"I helped knock the dust out of a lot of floors. I had a lot of fun. I had a lot of fun with them [boys] — buildin' them up and let 'em down. I had a lot of fun doing it. I had one in Nashville and one in Kansas. I was never pretty, but I sure had a lot of fun."

She married Sim Griffith in 1915. Shellie met Sim, a railroad worker, in the home of her sister, Dovie [Horner]. It was common for local families to board migrant workers because of the lack hotel room availability. Shellie jokes that he "just blowed in like a lot of the oil workers."

Editor's note: Shellie does not own her original allotment. She had deeded 160 acres of the unrestricted land to her descendants; 150 acres of the land remain in her family. Her allotment is located just east of the intersection of U.S. Highway 75 and 151st Street. Her family leases most of the land for pasture.

Her paternal grandparents were Silas H. and Sarah Ann Posey Barber. Her paternal great-grandparents were Benjamin and Liza Berryhill Posey. Shellie's great-grandmother, grandmother, and father belonged to Broken Arrow Tribal Town. Her mother, Alice, was not Mvskoke thus Shellie does not have a tribal town, but would be considered the daughter of Broken Arrow Tribal Town.

She had two sons, the late Howard and Earl Griffith. She has five grandchildren, five great-grandchildren, and one great-great-granddaughter.

Her husband died in 1961. Shellie resided at her home independently until her 101st birthday. She currently lives with her daughter-in-law, Dorothy, just west of her home on a portion of her allotment which she had given her son, Earl. Her great-granddaughter, Simmie Berry, and her family reside there currently.

She votes in Muscogee Nation elections regularly. Shellie is likely the eldest living member of the Muscogee Nation.

According to tribal citizenship board records, original enrollee Wesley Robert Lynch [also known as Robert Wesley Childress], 108 years, is living. It is likely that family members have not notified the citizenship board of his demise. The last tribal record of Lynch's address is Brazoria, Texas, reported to the board in 1984. Muscogee Nation Communications Department attempts to verify the status of his vital statistics via the U.S. Postal Service, Brazoria, Brazoria County Historical Society, and longtime citizens of the City of Brazoria have been futile. It is requested that individuals with information regarding Lynch [aka Childress] contact Stephanie Berryhill at: P.O. Box 580, Okmulgee, OK 74447; or (918) 756-8700, ext. 326.
